In Our HOUSE

By Arthur Mayse

On Friday, Santa Bennett hangs his lumpy budget stocking on the legislative mantel, and we can stop guessing about those promised goodies. Meanwhile, the House indulges in considerable doodling.

We were even conducted on a brisk witch hunt Wednesday afternoon by Sacred Tom Bate, our quarry being atheistic educators and colleges whose sex notes appear to be causing the burly Vancouver-Point Grey member alarm bordering on distress.

Since in his preamble Mr. Bate suggested that the press gallery's antique type writers cause us to misquote, I will deal with him as faithfully as my notes and his occasionally disjointed utterances allow.

"We try to bring up our children to live decent, Christian lives, we send them to Sunday school. Then when they get of an age to go to university, they are taught by professors to believe there is no such thing as God... that all they've been taught in their childhood about God and religion is false."

"I don't think there's any place for the teaching of atheism in our schools in a Christian country."

"I for one feel very strongly that taxpayers shouldn't be paying salaries to men who take this stand in our schools and colleges."

Pass the Salt

The indictment strikes me as pretty broad, considering that the professor responsible for the dustup is reported as having made his remarks to a private luncheon meeting of the UBC Philosophy Club, not to a captive audience of shuddering students in a lecture hall. But not to quibble, I return you to Mr. Bate now, shattering a lance against an eastern college reputed (and this I take with a whole shaker of salt) to offer a "Sex is Fun" course.

"Just what is going on in our universities today?" Mr. Bate demanded darkly. "I tell you, a lot of our juvenile delinquency is caused by children brought up in godless homes."

Next number up was NDP Leo T. Nimsick from Cranbrook, who isn't unduly perturbed by the fact that Communism, Socialism and even atheism are subjects enquired into by the colleges.

"I don't think you should try to muzzle anyone," Mr. Nimsick declared. "They teach these things so that the people shall know... you cannot curb the search for knowledge. That's what the John Birch Society is trying to do in the United States."

Worth the Effort

Turning toward an interested gallery, group of teenagers wearing identification plaques the size of bread plates, Mr. Nimsick urged the government to bring student observers to the House from all over B.C. "I think it would be money well spent to stage a contest," he said. "Through such a contest, we could pick students to be brought down here!"

Mutter and snort from the SC side: "They might leave the country!"

Time now to go join in the budget guessing game, but a word of explanation first to Mr. Bate. We love those ancient typewriters of ours, because when we plunk them with two industrious fingers, our thoughts come out good and noisy.

Like politicians' utterances on a pre-budget Wednesday afternoon, in fact.

ADMIRALTY MAN MISSING

LONDON (UPI)—Scotland Yard and security police widened a search today for a 27-year-old Admiralty employee missing for two weeks.

The yard began investigating the disappearance of Brian Davies yesterday. The clerk vanished Jan. 25 and was listed officially as missing Tuesday.

Where Did It Go?

Early morning jolt was received by Gene Vlasak of Bonners Ferry, Idaho, when he went out to his garage beside his home. Rapidlymelting snows had ruptured 16-inch culvert and water washed out ground beneath garage and dug ravine to left, leaving car hung by bumper.

EARLY LEAD

Leftist Harold Wilson to night beat right-winger George Brown 115 to 88 in a three-sided contest for the leadership of Britain's Labor party. But he failed to get a majority and a runoff vote was arranged for next week.

WIRE BRIEFS

Floods Threaten

LONDON (AP)—A thaw started spreading across Europe today, bringing a threat of floods in the wake of the month-long freeze-up.

Guard, Fiancee Flee

HELMSTEDT, West Germany (AP)—A 20-year-old East German border guard and his 19-year-old fiancée fled their homeland today and asked for asylum in West Germany, police announced.

Sabotage Plot Foiled

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Police have found sabotage caches of explosives, ammunition and napalm bombs, "sufficient to blow up half the colony," a Hong Kong government spokesman said tonight.

Sharp Rebuff

'A Frightened Tyrant,' Gargrave Brands Premier

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett was called a frightened tyrant and his government accused of aiding Communists in a hard-hitting attack Wednesday by Tony Gargrave in the legislature.

The New Democratic MLA for Mackenzie roared Social Credit from Real Cautious to Kamloops in a hot half-hour address.

It had overtones of the new federal election campaign, too. "We will restore the constitution," declared the New Democratic Party member for Mackenzie.

He accused the Socialists of supporting the Communist Party in an effort to undermine the trade union movement and the NDP.

He predicted that Social Credit will lose the support of business in the next election.

DON'T HAVE POWER

"They no longer have the power to threaten, to cajole, to shake down business men for campaign funds."

The government had alienated all its potential friends, Mr. Gargrave said.

These included: Doctors (by Premier Bennett's denial he'd seen a pooled risk private medicare plan);

Dentists (presumably by allowing licensing of technicians to deal with the public);

Lawyers (remarks made by the premier at a press conference last year).

"This government will abandon its friends, shake down business men,"

REVOLT STORY

Rift Denials Untrue

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The cabinet intrigue of the last week against the leadership of John Diefenbaker now appears to have been, effectively, ended.

But outraged denials coming from all sections of the Conservative party that such a revolt was never in the making are not based on accuracy.

The denials were given an air of authenticity by the resounding vote of confidence given the prime minister in Wednesday's Tory caucus, just before Mr. Diefenbaker went to Government House to dissolve parliament and name the election day.

It is true that in the caucus none of the disenchanted ministers showed any sign of their true feelings.

SUPPORT PLEDGED

It is also a fact that each member of the cabinet pledged his support to the Prime Minister.

The important fact, however, is that before the Tory party got to this happy and smiling state, a group of ministers did plot against the prime minister.

They held meetings towards the end of last week and again at the beginning of this week in their mutual concern over the Prime Minister's lack of decision or firm policy in the economic and defence fields.

Their concern about Mr. Diefenbaker's ability to lead either the party or the nation reached a peak on Jan. 30, when the U.S. state department issued a press release contradicting the prime minister's views on nuclear defence policy.

Mr. Diefenbaker wanted to call an immediate election on the issue of U.S. interference in Canadian affairs. He has since admitted that himself.

But he didn't explain the full reasons for not doing so.

He said he realized, however, that such a move might hurt the economy. He did not say that he has dropped his election plan after some of his ministers impressed on him the damage that might be done not only to the economy and to U.S.-Canada relations, but also to the Western alliance.

HARKNESS CRISIS

That crisis past, the group of dissident cabinet ministers were faced with a new one—the resignation of Defence Minister Douglas Harkness followed by growing signs the Social Credit group wanted to defeat the government.

Eleven cabinet ministers agreed on Tuesday that Mr. Diefenbaker should go, with Finance Minister George Nowlan named to replace him.

They felt with such a move they could win Social Credit support and avoid the election they thought would hurt the country.

Justice Minister Donald Fleming, on that Tuesday morning, was supposed to visit the prime minister and confront him with the decision. But it never came off.

External Affairs Minister Howard Green said if the prime minister resigned, he would, too. Agriculture Minister Alyn Hamilton made the same pledge.

Mr. Diefenbaker stayed at home that morning, instead of attending the funeral of Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin. He waited. Two dozen or more reporters and photographers waited outside in his driveway.

Nothing happened. The rebels had lost their nerve.

DE GAULLE PROMISES TO TALK U.K. ENTRY

BONN (UPI)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said today that French President Charles de Gaulle has promised to renew discussion of Britain's entry into the European Common Market as soon as the Franco-German treaty is ratified.

The West German leader told Parliament that he is "for British entry into the Common Market above all else."

Then he said de Gaulle has promised to discuss the matter with him once the Paris-Bonn friendship pact is out of the way.

BUDGET FRIDAY

Goodies, Yes; Guesses, No

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett delivers "the goodies" Friday. He has promised there will be some for everybody in his 1963 budget, which he will present to the legislature at 3 p.m.

It will be so "good" in fact, he predicted some time ago, that people would accuse him of planning an election.

That was not necessarily so, he added.

But since that statement was made an election has been called—a federal one.

No doubt Social Credit will want to make the most of a boom budget in B.C. in its nationwide campaign.

It will be a record budget for B.C., there's no doubt of that.

Estimates of the total spending for the year range from $375,000,000 to $400,000,000.

SPECULATION

As usual, when budget time nears, speculation starts. This time the speculation is about medicare.

Some observers believe the premier will announce a full-blown government plan.

But a lesson was learned in this year's throne speech, subject of tremendous speculation—all false.

The cost of medicare, according to opposition leader Robert Strachan, would be $45,000,000—about $25 per person.

The fact that the government has already promised a number of other costly goodies, plus the complete absence of any hint of medicare planning from its chief spokesmen, make this speculation look pretty thin.

HUGE SURPLUS

But there are some positive predictions.

One is a huge surplus account achieved by spending less than estimated and taking in a great deal more than expected in revenue during 1962.

Mr. Bennett will need to spend a large chunk of this in order to fulfill one of his main pre-budget promises—removal of tolls from five bridges.

The tolls can't be lifted until debt on the bridges is paid off according to the B.C. Toll Authority Act. The debt on the bridges was $33,000,000 at March 31, 1962.

DOUBLED GRANT

The other big promise already made is that the home-owner grant will be doubled to $100.

It would mean spending $26,000,000 instead of the $13,000,000 budgeted last year.

But Mr. Bennett said he would cut off municipal per capita grants—which cost him $12,600,000 in 1962—and replace them with grants in lieu of taxes on provincial buildings.

Another Bennett budget promise is a raise for all B.C.'s 15,000 civil servants, which the B.C. Government Employees Association says could cost about $4,000,000.

'Working in River Of Wet Cement'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Repair crews were to try to span a 130-foot washout on the Trans-Canada Highway near Lytton today with a Bailey Bridge sent from Vancouver.

If this does not work, provincial Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi said it may be necessary to reroute the highway behind Tank Mountain.

Government highway crews cut two detours around the Lytton washout Wednesday only to have both swept into the Thompson River.

An engineer said: "It is like working in a river of wet cement. Mud is still sliding down the mountain and taking everything with it."

Heavy rain fell through most of the Fraser Canyon

Wednesday but had stopped today.

A works supervisor said: "It would not be safe to drive through the canyon even if the road was open."

Meanwhile, the Canadian Pacific Railway track has been cut for the second time this week. A washout, 225 feet long and 100 feet deep today left track suspended in air seven miles west of Lytton, 100 air miles east of here.

Trains are being rerouted along the Canadian National Railways line on the opposite side of the Thompson River, which is so far unaffected.

Earlier in the week both railways moved passengers by bus and plane between Vancouver and Kamloops when lines were cut.

'FIGHT THE GOOD FIGHT'

... And the Band Played On

HARTLEPOOLS, England (AP)—Hodgson Boagey, 39, came off second best in his battle with a Salvation Army band that disturbed his Sunday afternoon.

Boagey was sitting in his apartment watching television. The band formed up outside his window and played the hymn "Fight the Good Fight."

Boagey went outside and shouted to the band to be quiet. That had no effect, so he got a bucket of water and threw it over the band.

The band played on. Boagey then threw the empty bucket.

The band played on. Boagey threw a dish of hot water.

The band played on. Boagey positioned himself at an upstairs window and hurled lumps of coal at the band. One lump hit a bandman on the head. Another made a dent in a trombone.

The band played on—except for one instrumentalist who fetched a policeman.

In magistrates' court Wednesday, Boagey was fined £2 for throwing missiles in the street, and another £2 for using obscene language.

The prosecution said there is a law against playing noisy instruments in the street, but it doesn't apply to religious services.

People and Things

(Times News Services)

LONDON—The BBC apologized today in court to publisher Lord Beaverbrook for "a most unfortunate and completely unwarranted defamatory attack" in a radio program.

Lord Boothby, Conservative peer and radio and television personality, also apologized.

The BBC and Boothby were said by their counsel to have agreed to indemnify Beaverbrook for his costs and to pay a substantial sum by way of damages to the Canadian Veterans' Association in Britain.

Counsel for Beaverbrook said he was a Canadian by birth and founder of the newspaper group which owned The Daily Express, Sunday Express and London Evening Standard.

Boothby was a member of a panel on a radio program called "Any Questions" which discussed these newspapers.

In this, counsel said, Boothby had made a serious personal attack on Beaverbrook and other Canadian personalities and had said it was desirable to pass an immigration bill to keep out the Canadians.

He said Beaverbrook and these other Canadians had done nothing but harm to Britain, counsel said.

Beaverbrook welcomed the right of any person to express fair and honest criticism of his conduct, both as a newspaper proprietor and in public life, but he could not allow an attack like this to go unchallenged.

Counsel for the BBC said it had dissociated itself from Boothby's remarks and had broadcast an apology to Beaverbrook which was also published in The Radio Times, the BBC's weekly newspaper.

Boothby's counsel said he wished to express his recognition of the great services Lord Beaverbrook had rendered to Britain.

BEAVERBROOK wins his case

LONDON—Soviet paratrooper Major Evgeni Andreyev, who dropped 15½ miles last November to set a world free-fall record, has broken an ankle in a street tumble, the Russian news agency Tass said.

LONDON—The Earl of Arran, reflecting some rising British tempers on President Charles de Gaulle, has called for a boycott of French "wines, women, food, scent, clothes, books or stationery."

The earl, who writes a spirited column for the Evening News of London, asked red-blooded Englishmen to turn against "that bottle-nosed old giraffe."

"He isn't just a head of state but a common or garden dictator," the earl said. "And no, he didn't save France, Britain did. They've never forgiven us for it."

LONDON—"I," said the parson, "like pictures of girls with long legs trying on silk stockings."

The parson was Rev. Timothy Beaumont, wealthy Church of England clergyman and treasurer of the Liberal party. He was addressing an advertising club luncheon Wednesday.

"I like your advertisements," he assured the members. "I buy some magazines almost purely for the advertising. By the same token, I find myself pleased, not disgusted, by having smelly, crowded journeys on the underground relieved by pictures of pretty girls in various stages of undress."

Mr. Beaumont, whose inherited fortune came from the aircraft industry, is 33.

CONCORD, N.H.—New Hampshire state Representative Peter Charland, 75, thinks it's distasteful for women to show their upper legs.

Barry Mines, 74, says if women want to they should have a right to.

Charland filed a bill with the state legislature Wednesday to make it illegal for women in New Hampshire to wear shorts or dresses that expose more of their legs than an inch above the knee.

Mines, a lobbyist for the New Hampshire Taxpayers' Association, went before the all-male judiciary committee of the legislature and said poetically:

"Leave us remember that the older we get, we may slow down but we don't forget. So fellows take action before it's too late: Make this bill inexpedient to legislate!"

The committee ruled against restricting women's hemlines.

Mr. Gargrave said the result of the Point Grey by-election—a Liberal victory—in which 82 per cent voted against the Socialists proved the government was "a paper tiger with no teeth at all."

Parliamentary democracy, he said, only works when run by men of integrity absent in B.C.

"Davie Fulton is right: the next election will be fought on integrity and honesty in government."

He said the new Conservative leader will siphon off just enough Social votes to let the NDP win and he wished him luck in Kamloops—his home—now represented by Highways Minister Gagliardi.

'PEACE HAS RETURNED'

OTTAWA (CP)—Conservative MPs and senators held a campaign strategy caucus meeting today and chairman George Hees said he expected no resumption of Wednesday's discussion of party leadership.

"That is over, done, cleaned up, and finished with—very successfully so," the trade minister said, referring to Wednesday's rousing caucus vote of confidence in Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

"Peace has returned to the family," said Defence Production Minister Raymond O'Hurley.

been stories that the old Coalition government, defeated in 1952, used to back Communists in an attempt to wreck the chances of the CCE.

"We see indications in this government also that they're supporting the Communist party to undermine the trade union movement and the NDP."

Later, Mr. Gargrave explained that he was referring specifically to the government's backing of the Mine Mill and Smelter Workers Union against raiding by the Steelworkers of America.

MODERATED APPROACH

Contrary to government charges, the NDP, Mr. Gargrave said, has moderated labor's approach in B.C.

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson was out of touch with real issues, Mr. Gargrave said. He seemed to lose his powers of analysis and perception before an audience. It affected him "like a double martini—he falls apart."

Mr. Gargrave said the government must return to labor the right to "debate, argue and persuade peacefully in the marketplace" and this included the right to information picketing, banned by the Trade Union Act, and also the right of political action, which he said was prevented by the Labor Relations Act.

Church Anniversary

Metropolitan United Church will celebrate its 104th anniversary next Sunday when the guest preacher at morning and evening services will be Rev. Dr. W. S. Taylor, principal of the Union Theological College in Vancouver.

enbaker said: "We were just discussing campaign plans" and that the meeting would resume this afternoon.

Mr. Diefenbaker told reporters there were "no signs of any change of plans" for his intended trip to London to receive the freedom of the city at a Guildhall ceremony on February 25.

In a statement prepared for radio and television, Mr. Diefenbaker said: "We have a plan for the next several years. An economic plan, a political plan, a plan to increase the economy, a plan to round out confederation, to assure a strong Canada economically and politically, whose security will be protected without the loss of sovereignty and without the domination of any other country or countries; a Canada which, while interdependent, will be independent."

Though the issues vary from party to party, the three basic themes running through them appear to be:

1. The performance of the government and of the opposition in the 25th Parliament—elected last June 18.

2. The national and international future of Canada, including whether the country should move to the political right or left, or into or out of closer alliances with other nations.

3. The still unsettled question, which all parties have found agonizing, of whether Canada should acquire nuclear weapons, and under what conditions.

Sevigny, State Secretary Ernest Halpenny, Revenue Minister Hugh John Flemming, minister without portfolio Wallace McCutcheon and Trade Minister George Hees.

Tuesday night, when the Commons was awaiting the fatal non-confidence vote in the government, the prime minister was engaged at his desk in spirited conversation with Mr. Green and Health Minister Waldo Moggeith, two men fiercely loyal to Mr. Diefenbaker.

He received a note from western Tory MPs asking him to go out into the government lobby. He did and the westerners shouted out four loud cheers. They were telling the disenchanted they were backing Diefenbaker.

RALLY TO CAUSE

In the Tory caucus Wednesday morning two rousing speeches by Conservative senators Gratton O'Leary and Alfred Brooks rallied the more than 100 Conservative MPs to Mr. Diefenbaker's support.

Then the prime minister took the stage and by the time he finished speaking the Tory parliamentarians sounded ecstatic in their expressions of confidence for Mr. Diefenbaker.

When the caucus ended seven of the rebel ministers held a meeting. They decided to entirely drop any further intriguing against the prime minister.

Then, at a short cabinet meeting, each and every one of Mr. Diefenbaker's ministers pledged his support personally.

The "palace revolt" was over.

Cuba Buildup Reports Shot Down by Kennedy

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rumpus over the size and kind of Soviet forces in Cuba lost much if not all of its steam today after the Kennedy administration took unprecedented steps to answer its severest critics on the issue.

Of first concern to Americans was the answer to this question: Are the Soviet forces in Cuba a threat to the United States?

Defence Secretary McNamara said no. To prove his case he made a two-hour television presentation Wednesday, photographs and all, as evidence that the U.S. through aerial watch keeps a constant check on doings inside Cuba.

Senator Kenneth Keating, New York Republican who had been charging that the Russians were keeping offensive bases in Cuba, said McNamara had disputed none of his charges.

CHARGES TONED DOWN

However, Keating had toned down some of them in an interview with The Associated Press published Wednesday in advance of the McNamara presentation. He agreed he doesn't think the Soviet weapons are poised against the United States or that an invasion is a threat.

He also backed down from a statement he made only a week ago that there is "continuing absolutely confirmed and undeniable evidence the Soviets are maintaining" the missile bases involved in last October's Cuban crisis with Premier Khrushchev.

He conceded that he was not talking about hard bases for intermediate range missiles. He said he knows those bases have been broken up.

But it was precisely those bases and those missiles, capable of hitting almost anywhere in the United States, which were involved last fall when Khrushchev pulled the missiles out.

WEAPONS UNSUITABLE

Next question: Are the Soviet weapons of the kind that could be used for offensive purposes at all?

Again McNamara said no. He included Soviet tanks, planes and certain kinds of missiles of short range. He said the planes couldn't be used for bombing to back up an invasion.

He said "I am satisfied there are no offensive weapons in Cuba."

The most Keating could say on this was that he thinks the men and weapons present a threat.

Next question: Could the Soviet forces in Cuba, men and weapons, be an invasion threat to any Latin American country?

Once more McNamara said no. He gave his reason: That Premier Fidel Castro lacks the kind of shipping necessary to move the Soviet equipment from Cuba to any other country.

Keating was extremely cautious on this one. He said he thinks the Soviet forces in Cuba are forming the "base of operations in other Latin American countries." He said there were still bases in Cuba for missiles with a range of 1,000 miles.

(McNamara denied this. He said the only ground-to-ground missiles in Cuba will go less than 30 miles.)

KEATING AGREES

But Keating said he doesn't think it possible to launch a great invasion from Cuba against any Latin American country although "it's possible to get personnel from Cuba to other Latin American countries without our knowledge."

What then is left of Keating's warnings and misgivings about the Soviet men and arms in Cuba? Not much. He said the Soviets have at least 20,000 men in Cuba. McNamara said they did once have 22,000 but now have 17,000 and that only 5,000 of them are in combat units.

Last August, Keating began warning of a Soviet buildup in Cuba. The Kennedy administration minimized his warnings then. But the buildup was real, as the administration found out and admitted later in its showdown with Khrushchev.

This time—as before—Keating has offered no proof but this time his argument looks over-inflated. Soviet weapons and arms, as long as they stay in Cuba, will be a problem. But that's a long way from being a danger or threat.

Major Work Unfinished As Parliament Dissolved

OTTAWA (CP)—Dissolution Wednesday caught the 25th Parliament with most of its work incomplete.

In the 72 sitting days since the session began Sept. 27 the government placed 61 items of legislation on the Commons order paper. Of these, 21 received royal assent after Commons and Senate approval. The rest died with Parliament's end.

Some major items got through, among them the creation of the Atlantic Development Board, amendments boosting the lending powers of the Export Credits Insurance Corporation and the Farm Credit Act, a tightening of food and drug laws.

Killed off at various stages in the legislative mill were measures to set a retirement age of 75 for senators, amend the British North America Act to allow contributory old age pensions, set up a national economic development board and establish a commission to revise electoral riding boundaries.

FIRM RULE

One feature of the 25th Parliament was the firm rule by Speaker Marcel Lambert, the bilingual lawyer from Edmonton who was elected unanimously by the House on the opening day of the session.

Speaker Lambert moved at once to tighten up the question period which opens each day's sitting, forcing MPs to adhere strictly to the rule book's admonition that oral questions must deal with matters of urgency.

The rules call for non-urgent questions to be submitted in written form and printed on the order paper. The result of Speaker Lambert's campaign was that, up to Tuesday, 1,467 written questions had been submitted—more than double the previous record, established at a session which ran twice as long.

Two items occupied 24 of the 72 sitting days.

Resolutions left over from the federal budget of last April took 14 days to pass. They hadn't been handled by the previous Parliament before it was dissolved for the general election of last June.

The traditional debate on the speech from the throne, the address by the Governor General which announces government plans for the session, occupied all eight days provided by the rules.

NEVER INTRODUCED

Some items announced in the throne speech, which is written by the cabinet, never did get introduced.

Chief among them were proposals to ratify the Canada-U.S. Columbia River Development Treaty, enact some recommendations of the MacPherson royal commission on railway transportation, revise the Unemployment Insurance Act in light of a special inquiry, provide for the amendment in Canada of the Canadian constitution, abolish the debate-limiting closure rule and split the Northwest Territories into two territories.

Among other items which did reach the Commons but died there:

Measures to implement recommendations of the royal commission on publications; establishment of an Indian claims commission; a manpower consultation service to handle problems posed by automation; extension of the Freight Rates Reduction Act to pay the railways $20,000,000 for holding back on rate increases to certain shippers; changes in the Bankruptcy Act to aid small debtors, and lesser amendments to several other acts.

Not a single item in the spending estimates for the 1962-63 fiscal year ending March 31 won Commons approval. They amount to more than $6,000,000,000.

Maori Mishap Mars Visit

Times News Service

AUCKLAND, N.Z. — Tragedy marred the Queen's visit to New Zealand today, just as on her first visit in 1953.

A bus loaded with Maoris, returning from welcoming ceremonies Wednesday night, plunged over a 130-foot bank and 15 of the aborigines were killed. There were 21 injured, some badly.

Dec. 24, 1953, while the Queen and Prince Philip were here, a train en route to Auckland plunged into a river and killed 200 persons. Many of those aboard were on their way to see the royal visitors.

The victims of today's tragedy had been part of a crowd of 20,000 who cheered in Waitangi when the monarch told them in the Maori tongue:

"Aroha nui kia ora koutou!"

"Lots of love and best wishes to you all."

Douglas Snelling, 19, who lives near the crash scene, found the Maoris lying in a heap, four and five deep.

"It was a horrible sight," he said. "You could have heard the moaning and screaming a mile away."

How Much for Peace Power?

FROM TIME TO TIME MR. BENNETT states that Peace River power, when and if delivered, will be cheap. His lieutenant, Mr. Ray Williston, has stated the price will run between five and six mills per kilowatt hour.

Mr. Randolph Harding is not convinced. Neither are a lot of other people in British Columbia who do not accept airy generalities from the premier or the principles of Social Credit mathematics.

Mr. Harding, to the shock and disapproval of the government, suggests that the initial price of Peace River power will be over six mills and possibly over 10.

When he is charged with "disgraceful conduct" by the premier and the attorney-general, and with using a revolutionary method of figuring, Mr. Harding wants to know why the legislature is not given the facts and figures for which it has asked.

Why isn't it?
Of course the cost and price picture for Peace River power can be rendered obscure by technical jargon and intricate bookkeeping talk. It is not, however, impossible for someone familiar with such matters to reduce the lines of the picture to a simplicity which a person of average intelligence could understand.

No great mathematical genius should be required to collect the relative figures which must be available to the government. They should show what the various ingredients of the scheme will cost—the amount represented by impounding the water, that represented by generating equipment and that represented by transmission, among them. With any other unavoidable expenses which should also be set out, including those covering financing, it should be possible to arrive at a figure for a unit of power.

Dr. Shrum has recently announced certain economies that will be effected by cutting the height of the dam. But if Dr. Shrum has presented figures which he believes to justify certain per kilowatt charges, they need support and explanation from other sources. Dr. Shrum is a highly interested party.

The point has arrived at which the people of British Columbia, who will pay the bills directly or indirectly, have to be told in terms they can understand just what kind of a load they are assuming, either in debt or in future electricity bills, for the project.

Up to this point any sporadic debate in the legislature has left them with little but confusion. They will remain confused until the government, meaning Premier Bennett, gives them facts and figures which they have not yet received.

He should present a clear statement to the House on the question, permit full debate and intensive study—preferably by a committee of the House where witnesses, including Dr. Shrum, can be called and interrogated.

Until he does that, he can expect nothing but skepticism from those clear-thinking members of the public who are not beguiled by a broad smile and Social Credit happy talk.

What Lessons for Safe Driving?

IN AN OLD SLAPSTICK COMEDY skit, the central character takes a correspondence course in flying. He invites a friend for a flip and while they are cruising aloft the friend asks how they are going to land. The student pilot confesses his ignorance. He hasn't received the lesson on landing yet.

A comparable situation exists in present day driving, but with no comedy in it at all. Thousands of Canadians learn how to start a car, how to steer it and how to feed the gas to the engine. A small, but lethal, minority of them never learns how to operate the automobile in a way that guarantees a happy ending to the drive or the safety of others who share the highway with them.

Conceivably the remedy for such people is education, courses in school at an early age. Not that they all need instruction in the mechanics of driving. But they do require the type of safety education which creates an undeviating habit of carefulness and courtesy.

In the United States some school authorities have worked out a program aimed to produce this kind of driver. Its purpose is to develop strong attitudes of social responsibility, effective skills in meeting the problems of common welfare and definite co-operation in solving vital problems so that "life will be more satisfying and profitable for all."

In other words, effective driving instruction has less to do with the individual does in the mechanical operation of his car than it has to do with the concentration he gives safety and responsibility on the highway.

This, it seems, is the kind of course most adults would welcome in school—training in character and behaviour that could, once the student becomes a motorist, help to prevent accidents and fatalities on the road. It could also be expanded to pedestrians who could be helped to avoid those suicidal practices which contribute to highway deaths.

The point made here is that good driving is not so much a matter of learning how to let in the clutch, swing the wheel, accelerate, snub the brakes, take a corner or change gears. It is a matter of character and behaviour belonging to the person behind the steering wheel—a question of self-discipline, consideration, respect for the rights of others, common sense and caution. These ought to be reasonable objectives for any classroom.

Welcome, Stranger

LAST YEAR TOURISTS VISITING Canada brought more money into the country than Canadians visiting foreign lands took out—the first time in a decade.

The net tourist profit was $75 million in a year which saw income from that source grow to $350 million, a sum $82 million above that of 1961.

By 1967, when the country celebrates the centennial of Confederation, the business should run to $1.1 billion, says Mr. George Hees, minister of trade, whose department assumed jurisdiction over tourism late last year. Already it is Canada's third largest dollar earner, following pulp and wheat.

Authorities in the United States have noted the reversal of the flow of tourist dollars between the two countries. The Americans plan to build up their earnings from this source but significantly, they are planning promotion which will complement rather than conflict with plans considered in Canada.

The Americans hope that expanded travel from points outside the North American continent can be encouraged to bring travellers to the United States if they visit Canada and to direct them to Canada if they come initially to the United States.

To this end co-ordinating programs of publicity will be arranged for Europe and other centres. Canada, says Mr. Hees, is already planning to spend more in that field.

The present outlook is good but tourists will come in increasing numbers only if the attractions are sufficient. We have the scenery. We must also have the kind of accommodation they want at the prices they are prepared to pay.

Good roads and attractive motels will, of course, be important elements in the expansion of this trade. So, also, will be the kind of welcome we, as Canadians, provide for our visitors. They represent a major industry in this nation. Enlightened self-interest should stimulate a natural inclination toward courtesy and friendliness for guests from other parts of the world.

Alouette, Gentile Alouette

CANADIANS, THROUGH their newspapers, have learned something of the success of the satellite, Alouette, launched late in September.

The objective of the Alouette experiment was to determine, from the orbiting mechanism, means of forecasting ionospheric weather, thus providing advance information for radio people to assist them in long range broadcasts. By checking the forecasts, the broadcasters would know what frequencies to use for best results.

It is a matter of interest and importance that Canadians should understand something about the achievement of their scientists in creating the intricate mechanism and of the joint effort, with the United States, to put it into orbit.

That knowledge is provided in major part by Dr. A. Hartley Zimmerman, chairman of the Defence Research Board, who has written the Alouette story for the Canadian Geographical Journal. Too often our people remain ignorant of the work our men of science are doing. When one of them in a position of high authority tells the story, Canadians have less excuse for ignorance. The Geographical Journal is to be complimented on publishing such material.

FROM WASHINGTON

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Europe Gets Its Orders From the General

SPEAKING of the final rejection at Brussels of the British application to join the Common Market, the Times of London says that "the immediate task" for Britain "is to put her own house in order," and then concludes by saying that "only radical measures will do now."

Lippmann

If we ask ourselves what kind of radical measures, we are bound, I am afraid, to answer that, in excluding Britain from Europe and seeking to expel the United States, General de Gaulle is pushing the Western world away from liberalism and ever more deeply into protection, regimentation and government planning.

If the British now take radical measures to earn their living, they will almost certainly have to face the prospect of freezing wages, compulsory arbitration, planned and directed capital investment and the regulation of private profits.

Seen in its historical perspective, Macmillan's decision to apply for membership in the European Economic Community and Kennedy's proposal for a transatlantic low-tariff trade partnership were joint and parallel efforts to set the Western world on a liberal course.

True Meaning

I would say in parenthesis that I am using the word "liberal" in its true and historical meaning and not in the perverted meaning given to it by the early New Dealers and the latter-day right-wing conservatives. A liberal economy is one in which the preponderant mass of economic transactions are made in free markets and not by decree of the central government.

Britain wanted the opportunity to sell in the big European market, and it wanted to be stimulated by the competition which industry in the United Kingdom would face as part of a bigger market. The United States has wanted a wider and freer world market in which, as industry expanded, prosperity would be more and more widely diffused. This is the liberal economic design which the General has shattered.

In doing this, he dealt not only with the British membership and the American partnership. He dealt also with the internal condition of the Common Market itself.

There is no more significant passage in the General's press conference of January 14 than the one in which he told the world and also the other five members what kind of economy they were going to live in. I quote the crucial paragraph in full. It will be much discussed in the days to come.

Agriculture Pool

"The system of the six consists of making a pool of the agricultural products of the entire community, of strictly determining their prices, or forbidding subsidizing, of organizing their consumption between all members and of making it obligatory for each of these members to pay the community any savings they might make by having foodstuffs brought in from outside instead of consuming those offered by the Common Market."

This says that the Common Market is to be a closed agricultural system in which French foodstuffs, particularly wheat and feed grains, are to have a monopoly at an arbitrarily high price. The other five members cannot obtain cheap foodstuffs from the Western Hemisphere. For although these are produced and sold at far lower cost, the so-called variable levy brings their purchase price in Europe up to the high price of European feed and grain. This is meant to be a prohibitive penalty.

The radical measures which the General will compel Britain to take, and it may be in some lesser degree the United States as well, are not at odds with his own philosophy. The system was established before he took office in 1958, but under General de Gaulle, France has become, by American and even British standards, a planned and directed economy.

Wage Freeze

The general imposed a wage freeze when he first took office. That is now lifted, but France has planned capital investment to modernize and expand basic industry. The government enforces the plan which is drawn up by consultation with industry, labor and agriculture, because it has—according to an estimate used by Mr. Dan Corditz, the Paris correspondent of the Wall Street Journal—under government control more than half of all investment funds through ownership of banks, large insurance companies and the like.

Whether the French system will run into trouble as wages and prices rise is for the future. At present, the French system is performing so brilliantly that the General has nothing to worry about at home. Moreover, he can afford to spend a lot of money on his nuclear weapons knowing that this spending will stimulate the French economy if it begins to slow down.

All this will raise hard questions of policy in the United States. For myself, I am sure of only one thing. It is that nobody now knows all the answers. (c) 1963, The Washington Post Co.

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

Happy 'Dream'

It is unfortunate that Victoria College's production of "Midsummer Night's Dream" could not be held over. So ripping a show should have been seen by more people.

Why go to Stratford when you can see this, here? It was a triumph for Mr. Hare, the cast, and the magical, invisible musicians.

The moods of the music and the timing to the actions were perfect. The grouping of actors on the stage was worthy of a professional troupe, but of course Mr. Hare is a professional, and his touch was evident everywhere. The harmony of colors was delightful. (How was Theseus ever able to defeat those Amazons?) And thank heaven the actors knew their lines. While a good bit of what Puck said was unintelligible, we consider the amount that spirit had to say, the rapidity with which his lines had to be rattled off, and the amazing amount of physical activity he danced through.

The different stage levels transformed the old auditorium into the spooky forest or the colorful palace, though the gory death scene on the lower level was out of sight to half the audience. I remember the movie version with Dick Powell, and am sure Douglas Fraser's interpretation of the role came nearer Shakespeare's heart. The whole cast put it over with the zing of amateurs and the know-how of professionals.

Proud and Independent

I have before me a copy of the Los Angeles Times containing an article by Charles Lynch on Canada-United States relations.

After reading it, I have come to the conclusion that it is a rather depressing picture of Canada to be so widely publicized in the land to the south of us.

For example one sentence claims: "There are West Coast Canadians, and New Canadians, and Prairie Canadians, Ontario Canadians, and French Canadians, and Atlantic Canadians—but they don't agree on anything and all regard one another with distrust, except in time of war."

Most of the article is stressing how Canadians are so deeply in hock to Americans, and for the first time in a century and a half, considering in cold logic the question of absorption of Canada by the United States.

Needless to state, Lynch's articles have caused a stir in the United States as I have received some letters from American friends with copies of the articles enclosed. These good people seemed to believe that we are wanting to throw ourselves into the arms of Uncle Sam in order to save our country from disaster.

The truth is, that although Canadians may differ on many subjects, not very many want to join the United States either as a political expedient or an economic union. Whatever faults we have are a proud and independent nation. No political party dare come out advocating union with the U.S. in any way. It would be the end of them.

I have found that the biggest beef is the domination by United States labor unions. There is a growing feeling that we are quite capable of running our own country in any way it has to be governed. What this country needs is to stop the drain of Canada's dollars to the United States.

The Cracked Alliance

By MAX FREEDMAN

IN THE past few weeks we have seen how much the Western Alliance depends upon Russian pressure for its own unity. Fear is still a stronger god than hope. We may try to explain the strains in NATO by pointing to Europe's growing strength or to President de Gaulle's abuse of that power. None of these explanations really touches the central truth. The West would not be in disarray, it would not be floundering anxiously for a new sense of direction, if Russia had lurched into another military adventure or was applying a ruthless policy of political pressure.

Freedman

Stalin was a founding father of NATO. The threat from Russia was clear and menacing. The West united to meet it.

But from the start NATO was meant to be more than a military alliance. Article Two of the treaty that created NATO speaks of economic and political co-operation that could establish a genuine Atlantic community instead of a mere military response to Russian power. After years of delay the alliance moved to turn this abstract ideal into a living reality. The main purpose was the formation of an enlarged common market with new trading links with America.

In Western Hands

Russia could do nothing to stop this project. It could bluster and protest but on this issue it could never divide the Western nations nor halt their advance. Russia's part in world trade is too small to mar this grand design. The means of progress rested entirely in Western hands.

They have been broken and cast aside by Western folly and Western lack of unity. The West could not save itself without the immediate peril of a Communist challenge. It was tragically deficient in wisdom and in statesmanship. That is the real measure of our predicament.

All the major European partners bear a share of the blame. England began by opposing the Common Market and trying to weaken it. Her recovery from this mistake, though valiant and constructive, broke at last on the invulnerable shield of the French veto. Italy muttered forlornly in the wings of the European debate. Germany's leaders were ready to wound Chancellor Adenauer but they were afraid to strike. Belgium and Holland never faltered in their loyalty to European unity but their power is too weak to turn the scales of destiny.

In this ferment of unrest and division it was rather easy for the triumphant arrogance of President de Gaulle to prevail. But it is a shallow exercise to blame one man for the European revolution. President de Gaulle abused and exploited a situation in Europe that he did not create by himself.

Substantial Support

For evidence is growing steadily that there is a great deal of support in Europe for the French position. This support does not cease to be significant because it is whispered furtively instead of being proclaimed boldly in public.

Many Europeans share President de Gaulle's view that Britain as a member of the Common Market would often be the agent of American policy. They also agree that Britain can be pushed out of Europe without having the Common Market suffer any reprisals in the United States. Above all, they think America cannot seriously reduce its defence commitments in Europe without incurring many important aims of American policy.

These Europeans are now in a rather happy position. The abuse is falling on President de Gaulle but if his plan has any measure of success, the benefits will spread across Western Europe. This mixture of cynicism and self-calculation, not unknown in Europe's past, has again become a secret and unfortunate influence on its policy.

Tensions From Power

When the Marshall Plan began, Senator J. W. Fulbright (D, Ark.) and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R, Mass.) sponsored a bipartisan resolution which rested American aid, in part, on Europe's progress toward economic and political unity. Since then, regardless of party, the United States has worked without pause or complaint for a prosperous and strong Europe. It has preferred the tensions arising from power to the conflicts produced by weakness.

Now, in its hour of recovered strength, Europe is behaving with the craftiness which once disgraced its history and once again has become a barrier to its abundant future. A great empire and little minds, said Burke, go ill together. The same warning applies to Europe now.

It cannot thrive by regarding Britain and America as rivals and competitors instead of as friends and colleagues. The failure of Europe's leaders to accept the challenge of this high destiny is the central cause of the hazards now dividing the Western Alliance.

PERPETUAL MOTION

People have always found it easy to believe that life in their time was much more stressful than that of previous generations. One hundred years ago, for example, a writer to The Times confidently ascribed the increase in the number of the insane to "the rapid and frequent railway travelling of this age," which, he argued, "must be injurious to the brain."

... REPORTING

OTTAWA—For 19 years a wooden balcony gargoyle by my seat in the Commons' press gallery has shared my surprise and dismay at many of the events below that have affected our national destiny.

I thought these last few days that I'd never seen him look more grave, that little wooden man with a sou'wester on his back and his knees drawn up to his chest.

He never says a word, but I'm sure he thinks more than some of those below whose gales of words lash his fishermen's olivians.

How can anyone not be grave at the prospect of an election fought on the issue of anti-Americanism, of animosity towards the country to which so many ties bind us, from the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth Rock in 1620 to the $950 millions loan in 1962 that saved our national bacon?

Already some Americans don't think too highly of us. Like Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, who after that gargantuan loan fumed he wouldn't lend Canada a nickel, plugged or otherwise. And looking over the record of our recent relationship with the U.S. that I outlined on Tuesday, his point of view is understandable. If we embark on a political binge in which vilification of the Yankees by one of our major political parties is the mean feature, we'll put this country back 40 years to the bitterness of the days of reciprocity and annexationism before the First World War.

My little wooden friend, whom I call Alfred, watched with me 18 years ago last fall as Defence Minister Ralston and Naval Minister Macdonald did just what Doug Harkness did on Monday, but for different reasons.

Or were they really different? The defence ministers of a generation ago were bucking an obstinate prime minister to back up the boys overseas with reinforcements. Harkness was bucking an obstinate PM to back up the boys overseas, and those at home as well, with modern weapons.

In each case there was an implied commitment, a question of honor, and a politically-motivated prime minister who was trying to weasel out of it.

In 1944 the resignations were not in vain. The conscripted reinforcements went forward the following year, after the failure of Defence Minister McNaughton to make the voluntary system work.

My guess is that Harkness' resignation will not be in vain either. It damns Prime Minister Diefenbaker's policy as vacillating, uncertain, procrastinating and of dubious honor. It saws off the limb onto which the PM has climbed. It seems completely unlikely that the PM can get a new mandate from the voters unless he changes his defence policy, as King did around Christmas, 1944, in time to win the 1945 election.

Sometimes resignations clear the air, like those in 1944, and like that of the governor of the Bank of Canada, James E. Coyne.

Sometimes it's a case of they also serve who only hand in their resignations.

Perhaps it will be that way with Harkness. Perhaps—and I mean no derogation of Harkness' service as minister when I say this—perhaps a decade hence his greatest service to the forces and to his country will have proved to be his resignation.

I put this line of thought to Alfred, who's been around the Commons a lot longer than me. And it seemed to me he nodded—ever so slightly.

Fast, Fast Relief

WASHINGTON (UPI) — By and large, tax deductions fall into two categories.

They are classified either as "equitable relief," which includes the deductions I am entitled to, or as "loop-holes," which are the deductions granted to someone else.

President Kennedy's tax message this week contained some of each. His proposals for equitable relief were not, however, as extensive as they could have been.

I regret that the president did not embrace a bill introduced by Rep. Frank J. Becker (R-N.Y.) to provide a deduction for transportation to and from work.

"In view of the fact that many types of exemptions are allowed to different people, why not for transportation?" Becker asked.

I don't know to whom he was directing the question, but my answer would be "Why not indeed?"

If such a deduction would cause too sharp a drop in revenue, then perhaps Becker's proposal could be modified to apply only to those who drive to and from work.

For that matter, I wouldn't object if it were restricted to newspapermen who drive to and from work. Or make it just those whose last names begin with "W."

SYNOPSIS—A ridge of high pressure built rapidly over the interior during the night and a storm offshore is moving in a more northerly track than expected. As a result except for the north coast very little cloud was in evidence over the province this morning. However, cloud will gradually thicken over the south coast today and some rain is expected tonight and Friday. In the interior sunny skies should prevail Friday.

LIBERAL candidate for Comox-Alberni in forthcoming federal election, Mayor W. C. Moore, of Courtenay, said Wednesday national defence is a "tragic issue" for an election. He was nominated at a convention in Parksville.

Labor Chiefs Blast NDP 'Mavericks'

TORONTO (CP)—Two labor leaders associated with the New Democratic Party Wednesday criticized two B.C. members who supported the Diefenbaker government in Tuesday's non-confidence votes in the Commons.

The MPs were H. W. Herdridge (Kootenay West) and Colin Cameron (Nanaimo), who said they supported the government because they do not want nuclear arms in Canada.

Murray Cotterill, public relations director of the United Steel Workers of America, said it was obvious the two think "even theoretical bombs must be voted against."

Francis Eady, Toronto head of the National Union of Public Service Employees, termed the action of the two "the height of irresponsibility."

The NDP caucus had authorized a "free vote" among its members, but most voted against the government.

American Released

PRAGUE (Reuters)—Authorities here have released American Robert Roy Budway, who was arrested seven months ago, and have ordered his deportation, the official Czechoslovak news agency Ceteka reported Monday.

Budway, a 34-year-old teacher from Washington, disappeared in July while on a visit to relatives in Czechoslovakia.

China Leaders Badly Split?

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI)—Chinese Communist party boss Mao Tze-Tung and government chairman Liu Shao-Chi struggle for control of Red China, the China Post claimed Wednesday.

The Nationalist Chinese paper, quoting a "high ranking Nationalist Chinese intelligence official," said Mao and Liu split over the Sino-Soviet ideological dispute.

Mao has been spearheading Red China's campaign to discredit Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev for his "soft line" communism.

The Moscow-trained Liu has remained a faithful disciple of the Soviet premier, the paper said.

OWN HEADQUARTERS

So serious has the split become that Mao has set up his own headquarters in Shanghai, taking with him Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai and Foreign Minister Chen Yi, the paper claimed.

Liu has established rival headquarters in Peking with vice-chairman Teng Hsiao-Ping and Defence Minister Lin Biao, The Post said.

The paper said Mao and Liu each control about half the Communist Chinese army. Mao, it said, controls the third Field Army in the coastal provinces opposite Formosa, while Liu controls the Fourth Field Army, which has five provinces under its jurisdiction, including Kwangtung and Hupeh.

Dief Names Three New Governors

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker, acting only hours before his government was defeated in the Commons, Tuesday appointed new lieutenant-governors for three provinces and named a Conservative back-bencher to the Senate.

The lieutenant-governor appointments—Fabian O'Dea in Newfoundland, Henry MacKeen in Nova Scotia and Robert Hanbidge in Saskatchewan—all were effective March 1.

Named to the Senate was Orville Phillips, a 39-year-old dentist who has represented the Prince Edward Island riding of Prince since 1957.

Mutual Funds Sales Still Soar

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

The sharp drop in the stock market last year apparently had no effect on rising sales of Canadian mutual funds.

Alan Chippindale, president of the 26-member Canadian Mutual Funds Association, has reported that while final figures for 1962 are not yet available, preliminary figures indicate that industry sales were "significantly higher" than the record $170 million sales in 1961.

Mr. Chippindale also pointed out that the Canadian mutual funds were the largest single-class owners of Canadian common stocks—making a major contribution to the aspirations of Canadians to own a larger equity share of their own productive enterprises.

Latest figures available for 1961 and they show mutual fund ownership of Canadian equities reached a total of $465,603,288.

In 1951 the total was only $41,185,292, an indication of the tremendous inroads the mutual funds have made on other savings and investment media in Canada.

Life insurance companies and pension funds together barely topped the mutuals' investment in Canadian common stock at the end of 1961 with pension funds accounting for about $255 million and insurance companies for about $220 million.

Growth of popularity of the mutuals in Canada over the past decade is also shown in ownership figures.

At the end of 1951, the 26 association mutuals had just over 22,000 shareholders while 10 years later the shareholders totalled more than 200,000.

Canadian Pacific Airlines is expected to make a contribution to the black ink side of the CPR ledger this year, according to Brian Renwick, vice-president of sales and traffic for the airline.

He said that while CPA lost about $7,000,000 in 1961 when jets were first introduced, 1962 saw the line come close to the break-even point and there should be a profit to report in 1963.

Montreal Trust Co. has reported net income of $1,422,242 for 1962 compared with $1,398,437 in the previous year.

Earnings per share amounted to $3.27 compared with $3.22.

Capital and guaranteed trust accounts at year-end amounted to $21,560,446, an increase of $4,421,322 during the year.

Production of wood pulp.

paperboard and wrapping of economic conditions—paper hit a new record in 1962, which advanced 12.1 per cent according to the Canadian paper from 1961 to 1,122,396 tons.

Pulp and Paper Association. Wood pulp production was up 2.4 per cent while pulp export erally regarded as a good in increased 5.9 per cent.

CHICAGO (AP)—Heavy selling knocked old crop soybean futures down sharply today and losses ran to five cents a bushel at times on the board of trade.

The grains were within small fractions either way of previous closes in relatively quiet dealings.

AT VANCOUVER today trading was moderate. Peace River Pete dropped to 21 with Vantor down at 14 while Bethlehem fell to $2.43 and Cowichan was down at 76. Craigmont rose to 19½ with Giant Mascot down at 85 and Grandcup up at $3.85. Kamloops fell to 07½ with New Ham down at 17½.

AT MONTREAL stocks turned back upward on the stock exchange today after taking losses during the morning.

AT LONDON the stock market continued to drift aimlessly today, with concern over unemployment a restraining factor.

New issue rumors depressed gilts and falls of up to ¼ were recorded. Dollar stocks went lower following the dissolution of the Canadian Parliament and the dollar premium moved down to 6½.

Algoma was a dull spot in Canadian shares, down 1½ to 82½. Imperial Oil, Price Bros., Consolidated Paper and Aluminium were other issues to show losses. Consolidated Mining moved against the trend.

AT TORONTO Atlas Steel, Royal Bank, Canadian Breweries, Bell Telephone, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and Canada Cement all showed gains of ½.

Losers included Interprovincial Life Line, off ½, Bank of Nova Scotia, down ½, Walker-Goodman, down ½, and Page-Herby Tubes, down ½.

Among base metals, International Nickel dropped 1½ to 68½. Falconbridge declined ½ while Denison rose ½ and Consolidated Mining and Metal ½.

Shipyards 'Busiest' Since War

B.C.'s multi-million-dollar shipbuilding industry is enjoying its biggest boom since the war, but the end appears to be in sight.

The "big three" of West Coast shipyards—Victoria Machinery Depot Ltd. and Yarrows Ltd. on Vancouver Island, and Burrard Dry Dock Ltd., Yarrows' parent company on the mainland—are busier right now than they have been in years.

But most of the ships the men are working on will be delivered by midsummer. Industry spokesmen predict construction activity will slacken off and stay that way unless a new shipbuilding program is launched.

SUBSIDY NEEDED

Shipyard executives such as Harold Hubbard, VMD president, and J. W. Hudson, executive vice-president of Burrard, say what is needed is a government subsidy to help build a deep-sea fleet.

Unless that is forthcoming, they say, commercial orders will not be sufficient to maintain shipyard employment.

Mr. Hudson says work on hand and anticipated orders promise some measure of stability for 1963.

"But there is going to be a lull, there is no doubt about that," he said. "It is too late to plan ships now for construction in July and there's going to be a slowdown of orders for the coastal fleet because of the number of new ships that have been added in the past two or three years."

At the present time, Yarrows and Burrard each employ about 1,200 in the yards and offices; Victoria Machinery Depot about 1,000. This is well below the wartime peak, when Burrard alone employed 15,000, but well above the low point reached in 1949-1950. Since then, naval and government shipbuilding and repair work have been the basis of shipyard prosperity.

Mr. Hubbard and Mr. Hudson both credit the federal government's 40 per cent-of-cost shipbuilding subsidy program announced in 1961 for stimulating the boom. But on March 31 it drops to 35 per cent and they say this may be enough to discourage further coastal or deep-sea construction because of low world charter rates and high B.C. wage rates.

Mr. Hudson believes the future of the shipyards may lie in automation, so they can compete with cheap labor such as in Japan.

HEAVY SPENDING

In the last five years VMD has spent more than $1,000,000 in enlarging facilities, improving handling methods and welding equipment and installing larger cranes. Already a new pattern in shipbuilding is taking place.

During the war five-ton cranes lifted steel sheets into place where they were welded by hand. Today sheets are welded under cover into sections by machine and the sections are dropped into place by cranes that can handle 50 tons or more.

Burrard also has long-range plans to modernize and expand its facilities and engineering studies now are under way.

Mr. Hubbard said the new methods permit ships to be built more accurately and more cheaply.

And this, he said, may be the answer.

Oil for Ships 'Swap' Sought By Russia

LONDON (AP)—The British government is facing mounting pressure to admit Soviet oil to Britain in return for Russian shipbuilding orders, that could help the country's hardest-hit unemployment areas.

Soviet trade officials have been pressing home hints that shipyards of northeast England could build tankers and other vessels worth about $70,000,000 provided 10 per cent of the bill could be paid in Russian crude oil.

This means Britain would agree to accept about 2,000,000 tons of Soviet oil at $11.20 a ton. No government-to-government offer is involved. The suggestion was made solely to British shipbuilders, but they must have government approval for the deal.

W. GERMAN PUBLISHER RELEASED

KARLSRUHE, Germany (UPI)—The government today released Der Spiegel magazine publisher Rudolf Augstein from prison.

The 39-year-old news magazine publisher was arrested Oct. 27 on a charge of suspected high treason in a government action that caused an uproar which shook Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government.

The federal prosecutor's office said Augstein was freed from his Coblenz prison cell because his release does not hinder the interests of justice.

The release does not mean Augstein was clear of the suspected treason charge.

'Don't Fear Population Explosion'

GENEVA (Reuters)—A Russian expert today told delegates to a world science conference here not to be frightened of the "population explosion" because he said raw materials from other planets may be available within about a decade.

In any case, resources at the disposal of humanity could, if fully utilized, cope with the growing number of people, E. K. Fedorov said.

Fedorov was speaking to delegates of the 87-nation United Nations scientific and technological conference.

Prof. V. G. Bogorov, another Russian, said there are spectacular possibilities in the use of deep-sea vegetation as agricultural fertilizer.

Head of the British delegation, Sir William L. Slater, warned the conference of the progressive scarcity of certain chemical ingredients in the atmosphere which are indispensable to the maintenance of human and plant life.

Fund Launched

OTTAWA (UPI)—A voluntary organization within Canada's universities today announced plans to raise $185,000 to send 100 graduates to work in the underdeveloped nations of Africa and Asia.

Spain Wants Money

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Spain was reported ready today to demand U.S. military aid totalling $200 to $300 million in exchange for renewal of American rights to Spanish air and naval bases.

Bennett 'Sponsor' Disputes Ruling

VANCOUVER (CP)—Free-lance broadcaster Bob Bowman said Wednesday night the radio program The Premier's Report is not sponsored by any political party.

He was replying to a Board of Broadcast Governors decision the 15-minute weekly program was of political character and its sponsors must be identified. He said the program is carried by about 20 B.C. radio stations.

His own company, Bob Bowman Associates, were the only sponsors, he said. However, various private citizens had liked the program and were paying his firm to prepare it.

Mr. Bowman declined to name those paying the bill, which he estimated at about $400 a week.

He said, however, he was prepared to preface the program with: "The following is a paid political broadcast."

The BBG wired the decision Wednesday to Vancouver area radio stations CKLG and CKNW, and sent a letter to Liberal Leader Ray Perrault informing him of this.

Mr. Perrault told reporters the first broadcast Jan. 5 was an "exercise in fiction in more than one place."

TEEN-AGE CANADA

Will You Be My Valentine?

By JACK HUSTON

How many Canadian teenagers will soon find in their mailbox a sentimental card that says something like this: "Do I want you for my Valentine — Certainly NOT." Or this sentiment: "I think of you often — every time I pass a horse."

Manufacturers report the practice of sending "sick" Valentine cards is still with us. If anything, it may be more popular when Thursday, Feb. 14, rolls around.

Thousands of young Canadians will be told they should live alone in a dark cave, try a charm course or just try and forget the whole mess.

Sick Century

What makes this sad seem strange is that the origin of Valentine cards goes back to the third century. It wasn't until the end of the last century that "sick" cards started to be popular.

Historians still argue about how St. Valentine's Day started, but many believe it dates to the second half of the third century when Bishop Valentine was beaten with clubs and beheaded on the orders of the Roman emperor.

In 496 AD the Pope dedicated Feb. 14 to St. Valentine and made him patron saint of true lovers. (If you find buying a present and card a bit expensive today, this was when your problem started.)

The oldest Valentine card in existence rests in the British Museum. It was designed by the Duke of Orleans in 1450 — and started a verse-writing competition that hasn't stopped.

By 1700 the cards had acquired the flowers and ribbons that many still have. And they are taken seriously. Many prospective fathers-in-law used to judge their daughters' prospects on the quality

Book Aids

Young fellows who knew they might be outclassed by another suitor could cheat by buying a widely-used book called The Young Man's Valentine Writer — unless, of course, the father had read it, too.

A fellow had to be sharp to keep ahead of the field. Evidence of this was the card which the poor girl had to prop up on an easel before she could read it. At least it impressed her father.

It's still possible, by the way, to buy another gift which was popular in those days. A suitor who wanted to show that he was, really, serious would buy a pair of gloves for his girl.

The girl may have thought he wanted to hide her dishpan hands. But fathers generally figured the young chap must have money if he could afford to give the lass something so expensive.

In case you're practising your Valentine technique, here was a verse which stirred the girls in the days of Queen Victoria:

"Sweet is thy voice to me as is the wandering breeze, which whisp'ers summer melody among the leafy trees, fair is thy face to me as flowers in bonny May, as therefore do I offer thee a little love gift today."

Bit mushy, eh? Here was one from a chap who must also have been a bit of a braggart: "Of all the flowers the spring hath met, and I have met with many, thou art to me the fairest yet, and loveliest of any."

The end of the last century saw what were known as Vinegar Valentines. Having just read a few, it seems unbelievable to me that the sender and receiver could ever speak to each other again.

No Spark

One, for example, blasted a lady for being an unthoughtful and wasteful shopper. Not only that, but she was unappealingly rude to clerks.

Not the smallest spark of decency in her.

So you may receive a card soon that asks on the outside: "Whose cute little Valentine are you?" and replies on the inside page, "Who would want you?"

But just remember that our cards are at least aren't as syrupy as they were 200 years ago — and nowhere near as cruel as they were 50 years ago.

Instant Wit

The rapid-fire patter of TV entertainers must be having some impact on us. I recently overheard a girl about 12 years old say to a girlfriend:

"I don't feel myself today." The other girl shifted her schoolbooks in her arms, and replied, "I already noticed the improvement."

"Do you live on Maple Road? Then get right off because there's a car coming."

Musical Chairs

Last week I mentioned a pocketbook called The Magic House of Numbers, written by Irving Adler and published by Signet.

One of the mysteries it unfolds is the number 142,857 — an amazing number which actually plays "ring-around-a-rosy." Why not confound the family by asking them to multiply it by 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6?

The answer to the first is 285,714. Notice anything yet? Multiply our first number by three and you'll get 428,571.

Multiply by 4 and you'll get 571,428. The numbers are revolving like musical chairs.

This series will follow through like clockwork, multiplying 142,857 by 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6. But a very significant thing happens when you multiply the number by 7.

If you've followed some of our discussion on the number 9, you'll realize what a significant thing is happening when 142,857 is multiplied by 7. Or, to find out more about it, try finding Adler's book. It costs 60 cents.

Ill Wind

If you're a stamp collector, watch for the 1944 U.S. stamp which marked the 75th anniversary of the first transcontinental railway.

The stamp is a beautiful one at first glance. It shows the last golden spike being driven home at Promontory, Utah, and was adapted from a mural.

The only problem is that the smoke from the locomotive is being blown in one direction while a flag at the side is flapping in the opposite direction.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Roddy McDowall, the actor who's becoming equally celebrated as a photographer, has killed a series of negligee pictures he took of Elizabeth Taylor — because he felt the printed photos were too revealing and made her appear less beautiful than she is.

"An abundance of nakedness is never as attractive as a mere suggestion of nakedness," says Roddy.

"I'd hoped for subtlety but I thought the printed pictures — some were published in Playboy — were too blatant. If the pictures can be printed this way, I don't want them printed."

"So I killed the rest of them. I explained it all to Elizabeth. She understood."

Roddy, who's been filming "The Greatest Story Ever Told" in Arizona and Utah — is off to Madrid for added scenes in "Cleopatra" with Richard Burton and Rex Harrison. Liz, while not in the new scenes, is expected to be in Spain — with Burton.

Roddy says looking at photographs he's taken — even when they're not of Liz Taylor — is more pleasing than looking at himself on the screen.

"I don't enjoy myself in the movies," he says, "because that hideous thing you see up there is not the real beautiful me that I know and love!"

The Judy Garland-Sid Luft "reconciliation" there've been so many you couldn't call it a mere "reconciliation" — didn't take. It lasted about a week.

"The President's favorite producer," Richard Adler, denies there's any "freeze" between JFK and Frank Sinatra. "How could the President feel any chill toward a man who did so much to help pay off the Democratic party debt?" asks Adler.

Elia Fitzgerald turned to a ringsider at Basin Street East and said, "Mister, you're being a pain-in-the-neck. Why don't you listen quietly like everybody else?"

Beautiful Jill St. John's been having secret dates here with heartthrob Robert Goulet — in fact, studio execs say they can't find her hideout, and that she's playing hooky from working on promotion for "Come Blow Your Horn."

Juliet Prowse doesn't know what to do. N.Y. critics blasted part of her act as being too suggestive. In Las Vegas, the audiences demanded she put that material back in!

Twenty years after the tragic plane crash involving herself and Jane Froman, Gypsy Markoff will be opening at the Stanhope Tuesday.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answers each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Anita Barnes, age 12, of Houston, Tex., for her question:

How long do locusts stay underground?
Locust plagues have plagued our crops since the time of the early settlers. Some people claim that the hungry insects strike every year. Others claim that they stay underground and take to the air after two to 20 years. Part of the confusion lies in the fact that all the insects we call locusts are not true locusts.

The true locust belongs to the grasshopper group of insects. He starts life as an egg buried in the ground or in a log of rotting wood. If the weather is warm, in a few days he may hatch into a miniature, wingless copy of his parents. He starts his hungry career at once by devouring the greenery around him. The youngster is called a nymph, and as he grows, the nymph sheds his old coat for a bigger one.

In three months or so, the

The true locusts damage our field crops. But the so-called 17-year locust belongs in quite a different insect group. This fellow is actually a cicada, a relative of the leafhoppers, the aphids and the scale insects. Altogether there are 2,000 or more different types of cicada, and almost 200 live in the United States, each with its own notions of when to leave the ground and take to the air.

The mother cicada lays her eggs in the bark or near the end of the twigs on trees and branches. Each egg hatches into a wingless, scaly nymph, who promptly drops to the ground and digs himself into the dirt. There he lives for years sucking juices from the roots.

The cicada nymph may stay underground from four to 20 years, depending upon the species to which he belongs. At the right moment, it emerges with countless numbers of its relatives and climbs up a tree trunk. Its skin cracks open and out steps the grown cicada. It is a large and beautiful insect with glowing red eyes and wide gauzy wings. They flock through the summer air with a noisy din for two weeks or so. By this time, the new broods of cicada eggs are laid, and the parent insects perish.

The mother cicada weakens the twigs where she lays her eggs and the young nymphs sap underground roots. They are destructive insects, but not so bad as the plagues of the true locust. Flocks of these insects cloud the sky as they migrate for food. When they descend, they devour every green leaf in sight. The ground is stripped of crops and grasses, and the trees lose all their foliage.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "I pays to advertise. Since they put those 'Smokey Bear' ads in the NY subways, there hasn't been one forest fire in all of New York City" (Arnold Glasgow).

EARL'S PEARLS: Tommy Manville knows all about women and has 10 divorces to prove it.

REMEMBERED QUOTES: "To me, old age is always 15 years older than I am" (Bernard Baruch).

President Kennedy's physical fitness program is working already! Twenty-five years ago it took a big strong man to carry $10 worth of groceries. Now even a child can do it... That's earl, brother.

SQUIRE WARNS AGAINST POOL PLAN

Unions Won't Have Medicare

There will be "real trouble" if a government-backed pooled risk medicare plan is introduced in B.C., the legislature was warned Wednesday.

John Squire, New Democratic Party member for Alberni, said trade union members would not stand for it.

He said they would probably set up their own union medicare plans or form co-operatives.

However, Premier Bennett flatly denied that he knows anything about the plan described by Mr. Squire.

The NDP apparently is convinced the government and present medical insurers are in league to draw up the pooled risk plan under the name United Medical Insurers.

MSA, which would be a major voice in the pool, is largely composed of trade union members, Mr. Squire said.

"It might well be that if they were coerced into such a scheme it would cause them to consider, as unions have done in other parts of the country, the setting up of union or co-operative clinics."

The clinics have been set up in Saskatchewan.

Mr. Squire said unions have had plenty of experience in the past with hospital schemes and sick benefit plans on their own.

"We are not going to be used to further the ends of the insurance companies in their attempt to defeat a proper medical plan."

The UMI scheme would allow insurance companies to "get their fingers on the profits."

If they do: "There's going to be real trouble in this province."

Mr. Squire noted that the premier had denied seeing the UMI plan Tuesday "as premier," not as minister of finance, which is also his job.

Up jumped Mr. Bennett:

KNOWS NOTHING

"As president of the executive council, as premier, as minister of finance, as chairman of the Toll Authority, as president of the PGE, as fiscal agent of the B.C. Hydro—I know nothing about it."

A moment later he popped again: "Oh, yes, as member for North Okanagan..."

Mr. Squire said the NDP was the only party in favor of medicare as "a social need." Other parties backed it for political expediency.

"It's nonsense to talk about the cost of good health, because the cost is in poor health."

He said he feared the government would subsidize the UMI plan.

It provides for four directors from the doctors and profit-making insurance companies and three from MSA and MSI groups—nobody else would be represented, said Mr. Squire.

Another section of its draft constitution would give the directors power to refuse to open account books to members of the pool.

Education Wins Defence Never Labor

Double-portfolio cabinet minister Leslie Peterson would be quick to defend education, but never labor, a New Democrat charged Wednesday.

John Squire, of Alberni, told the legislature that Mr. Peterson, Premier Bennett, and other cabinet ministers make irresponsible statements about labor.

Mr. Peterson is minister of education as well as labor.

"I'm sure if somebody attacked teaching or the education system—he'd be right up on his feet defending."

Poor Road To Tofino Irks MLA

Why will Highways Minister Gagliardi build a beautiful but remote road in his home riding but refuse to improve one in the Vancouver Island riding of a New Democratic Party MLA?

The question was posed in the legislature Wednesday by John Squire (NDP—Alberni).

He demanded action on improving the west coast Island road from Alberni to Tofino.

It is no longer merely an access road, Mr. Squire said. It serves mining, fishing, and logging industries as well as the local population.

It's poor condition is holding up development.

PEOPLE WONDER

He asked Mr. Gagliardi why he had built a new road in North Kamloops. People wondered why it was there, he said.

"The bridge had to be replaced," said Mr. Gagliardi. "Therefore the road had to be built."

"It's a long way from the bridge to the end of the road," Mr. Squire said.

He said he would give petitions from westcoast residents to Mr. Gagliardi.

"I want something done."

Mr. Squire also asked what had happened to "grandiose" plans for road development on the north end of the Island.

'Deter Sons From Return To Kootenay'

A member of the legislature said Wednesday that everything possible should be done to deter the Sons of Freedom Doukhobors from returning to the Kootenay.

Leo Nimsick (NDP, Cranbrook) said lack of government action concerning the Sons, most of whom are in Vancouver, will drive them back to the Kootenay.

He supported a suggestion by Lois Hagen (NDP, Grand Forks, Greenwood) that a committee be established with representatives of Freedomites on it.

Mr. Nimsick, who described the sect as misguided and sick, said there are good agriculturists, artisans, carpenters, woodsmen and machinists among its number.

There were thousands of acres of vacant land on the lower mainland that the Freedomites could put their talents to work on and earn their living.

Socred Would Fire Atheistic Teachers

A Socred who said teachers that don't believe in God should be fired created a storm in the legislature Wednesday.

"I say: get them out of our educational system," said Tom Bate (SC—Vancouver Point Grey).

He was the second Socred to say this in the House. Monday Alex Matthew (SC—Vancouver Centre) made a similar statement, attacking UBC professor Peter Remnant for telling students there is no God.

Mr. Bate said he shouldn't be paid by taxpayers.

"That's what the John Birchers do in the U.S.," replied Leo Nimsick (NDP, Cranbrook).

ACADEMIC FREEDOM

"How about academic freedom?" asked Tony Gargrave (NDP—Mackenzie).

Driver Fined $175; 'Groggy' From Pills

John L. Monkman, 639 Yates, was fined $175 in city police court Wednesday for impaired driving Dec. 30, when his car mounted the curb near the Roundabout at Douglas and Hillside, tearing out a traffic sign.

His licence was suspended.

He said he had been made "groggy" from pills he was taking on doctors orders, and only remembered taking two drinks of rum. He did not know how the accident occurred, he told the court.

CALCUTTA (AP)—A rogue elephant pushed an Indian Army truck off a mountain road in the Northeast Frontier this week, reports reaching here today said, causing the deaths of nine men in a 300-foot plunge. Others were injured.

NDP Member Gives Grant Away

Charity begins at home for John Squire — with Social Credit's homeowner grant.

The Alberni New Democratic member Wednesday told the legislature that he has been giving away the annual grant, which started at $28, went up to $50 in 1960 and is supposed to go to $100 this year.

When Premier Bennett's government introduced the grant, in 1957, Mr. Squire said he was opposed to it and wouldn't accept it.

What prompted his confession Wednesday was a charge from Donald Smith, the Victoria Socred, that he had been accepting the money.

"The money has gone into charitable purposes and contributions around my municipality," Mr. Squire said.

He sent a piece of paper over to Mr. Smith which he said would prove it.

Mr. Squire said he had refused to accept the first $28, but each year afterwards he'd give the money away.

That means so far he has given $184.

Rangers Rally After Gump Is Patched Up

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pity poor Gump Worsley. For the last few weeks opposing National Hockey League players have been shooting at him as though he were the bad guy in a Grade B western movie.

So Wednesday night he had a comparatively easy time—only 36 shots as New York Rangers dumped Montreal Canadiens 6-3—and what happened?

He cracked his head on the crossbar of his goal cage, requiring seven stitches to repair the damage.

For Montreal, which blew an other chance to move into sole possession of second place, it might have been better if Worsley hadn't been hurt.

The Canadiens were leading 3-1 when Gump had to leave to be sewn up midway through the first period, but the Rangers, apparently inspired by the sight of their comrade losing some blood for them, scrambled back with five unanswered goals and the victory.

HAWKS STRETCH LEAD

In the league's only other action, Chicago Black Hawks stretched their first-place lead to five points by holding Detroit Red Wings to a 3-1 tie.

Detroit rookie Lowell MacDonald gave his club the tie, scoring his first NHL goal with only one minute and nine seconds left to play.

The night's action left Chicago in first place with 63 points, Montreal and Toronto Maple Leafs tied for second with 58, Detroit fourth and 54, New York fifth with 38 and Boston Bruins last with 32.

The Rangers got a big helping hand from centre Don McKenney, acquired from Boston earlier this week in a trade for Dean Prentice.

McKenney deflected a shot by Andy Bathgate past Cesare Maniago, snubbing, for Montreal's injured Jacques Plante, for what proved to be the winning goal at 9:03 of the second period. Then he set up Bathgate for New York's fifth marker early in the third period.

Andy Heberton, breaking a long scoring drought, counted twice for New York, getting the first and last scores. Dave Balon and defenceman Harry Howell scored the other Rangers goals.

LOOKED IN CONTROL

Montreal appeared to have the game in complete control in the first period, despite Heberton's opening goal.

The Canadiens roared back with Boom Boom Geoffrion and Billy Hicke scoring within a 20-second span and Claude Provost making it 3-1 before the game was 11 minutes old.

It was on Provost's goal that Worsley was hurt. He went tumbling as Ranger defenceman Jim Neilson and Montreal centre Henri Richard crashed into him.

The Rangers protested the goal on grounds that Richard was inside the crease but referee Frank Udvari ignored the outcry.

The game was delayed for 19 minutes while the trainer patched Worsley. He kicked out 18 shots in the third period.

The loss cost Montreal more than a couple of points. Tom Johnson, their steady defence veteran, was forced to leave the ice after aggravating an old groin injury.

HOWE SCORES 26TH

In the Detroit-Chicago game, Gordie Howe opened the scoring, punching in his 26th goal of the season on passes from Alex Delvecchio and Parker MacDonald. On the Red Wings' second goal, Parker MacDonald deflected home a drive by Howe.

Kenny Wharram scored twice for Chicago.

Clyde Bogle Sets Pace in Pin Race

It will be Clyde Bogle against the field in the all-events race at Aurora Lanes this weekend as trundlers wrap up the annual city handicapped tenpin tournament.

Bogle grabbed the lead in the individual battle for the coveted scratch all-events title when he rolled a 639 three-game series in team competition last weekend.

Singles and doubles will be decided this weekend and individual tallies in those events, plus scores in the team contest will make up all-events totals.

One shift has been scheduled Saturday and six shifts are on the slate for Sunday.

Here are the starting times:

SATURDAY
7:00 p.m.—P. Morneau and R. Curry, C. Strel and E. Bennett, P. Le and B. Proctor, T. Harper and V. Brown, K. Yuen and A. Mar, P. Baccan and J. Scutell, C. Ched and B. Blake, N. Cain and D. Craig.

GOLF SCHOOL

By SAM SNEAD

STRIVE FOR ACCURACY

Today's illustration shows my form for a short pitch shot with a 9-iron. Note how both of my feet are still flat on the ground, even though I'm at the top of my backswing. I find that I have much greater accuracy by keeping both heels flat on the ground. They limit the back-swing and help the accuracy.

The less body movement and hip pivot I put into this shot, the better will be my accuracy. Try to handle as much of the shot with your armswing and shoulder turn as possible. Some hip pivot will come naturally, but try to keep both feet planted firmly.

Puck-Eye View

Nobody could accuse Detroit goalie Hank Bassen of failing to keep eyes on puck as it whizzes above net on this shot. Bassen didn't see them all in National Hockey League game at Chicago Wednesday night and Red Wings had to settle for 3-3 tie with Black Hawks.

Open 'Spiel Warms Up As Seniors Hit Finals

Twelve senior rinks stepped out today to distribute their prizes and 64 foursomes in the open portion of Victoria's annual bonspiel were just starting to warm up.

The finals in three senior events were scheduled to be played at Victoria Curling Club this afternoon. Heading into this morning's rounds, eight city rinks and four visiting quartets had progressed to the semifinals.

Rinks in the open bonspiel are starting to build up a full head of steam. The 64 rinks opened play Wednesday in both primary events and most of them managed to get in two games.

For senior foursomes were unbeaten after Wednesday's play. There were skipped by Herb Shea and Charlie Hodgson of Victoria, Duncan's Bob McLean and C. R. Thomas of White Rock.

DICKSON EDGED

The four squared off in this morning's primary semifinals. A Davidson of Nanosee and local rinks skipped by Max Zabel, Glen Walkey and Jack Graham had reached the "B" four. Pete McIntyre, W. Gates and F. Heise were Victoria skips reaching the "C" event semis along with John Graham of White Rock.

Highlight of Wednesday's play in the open bonspiel was the victory of Keith Dagg's Victoria Rink, skipped by Lyall Dagg, over Jim Dickson, Dagg won 7-6 on an extra end.

The foul, called on offensive leader Norris Martin, enabled Wayne Osborne of New Westminster to sink two free shots and give the Bakers the lead for good after it had changed hands 18 times in the previous 12 minutes.

Osborne lifted the defending champion Bakers into a 68-67 lead with 1:29 remaining in the final quarter. Bakers, although hard pressed, hung on for a 72-69 win to force a deciding game in the best-of-five semifinal.

Kept Chiefs Ahead

It was ironic that the foul on Martin spelled finish to a strong Victoria bid to end the series in four games. Martin, the league's leading scorer during the regular season and high man Wednesday with 25 points, had kept Chiefs ahead in the early stages of the final quarter with three rolling hook shots.

Referee Torree Larsen called the foul on Martin just 71 seconds after guard Bill Wilson had put Chiefs ahead 67-66 on a driving layup from the corner.

Martin and Osborne went high for a rebound in front of the Victoria basket. The Victoria player appeared to wrestle the ball from Osborne and gain possession when Larsen called Martin for elbowing.

"That call on Martin beat us," Chiefs' coach Ken King said after the game.

"Referees are supposed to build the game, not ruin it with calls like that. I don't like to complain about officiating but there's simply no excuse for those kind of calls in the final minutes of a playoff game."

Boost for Morale

King said he feels his club can still win the final game here Saturday night although Bakers should hold a morale edge.

"Coming back to win after it looked like they were finished is bound to give their morale a big lift. But we're not out of it yet — we'll give them a battle."

Wednesday's game, played before only 250 fans, saw Bakers run up a 22-18 lead in the first quarter but two late baskets by Martin — one of which gave Victoria its first lead—put Chiefs ahead 34-31 at halftime.

New Westminster led 50-49 after three quarters.

FAIL TO SNAP TIE

Puck Leaders Heading Into Showdown Battle

Dormans and Duncans still haven't managed to crack a first-place deadlock in the Independent Commercial Hockey League, but they should get around to attending to that matter next Wednesday.

They continued their shoulder-to-shoulder race at Memorial Arena Wednesday night, failing to snap the tie as both travelled the shutout trail to victories.

Dormans rapped in a goal in the first minute and coasted to a 5-0 triumph over Kings. Randy Ferby collected his 12th and 13th goals of the season as Dormans drilled 41 shots at Kings' netminder Vince MacDonald.

League scoring leader Tobu Wilson fired the first goal as Duncans shared their scoring among six players on their way to a 6-0 triumph over Northwesters.

Now Duncans and Dormans are heading for a showdown clash in the opening game of next week's doubleheader.

Pro Boxing To Continue In New York

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—New York state will allow professional boxing to continue within its borders but is likely to demand that changes be made to make the sport safer and more palatable to the public, it was learned Wednesday.

A committee formed by the state legislature to investigate the sport will issue its reform recommendations to the lawmakers several weeks from now.

The Associated Press learned that a majority of the seven-man committee is unwilling to recommend abolition of the sport—one of the possibilities the legislature instructed the committee to examine.

The Republican legislative leaders are supporting the committee position, and they have authority to determine what legislation comes before the lawmakers. Governor Rockefeller has left the decision to the Republican-controlled legislature.

The committee is to meet with the legislative leaders next week.

The committee — the joint legislative committee on professional boxing — began its investigation last year after the death of Benny (Kid) Paret as a result of a knockout in a welterweight title fight in Madison Square Garden.

CURLERS' CORNER

By Ernie Fedoruk

Button, button, who's got the button?

I'd hate to be the first one to accuse Elmer Hoffman of being a shifty character, but his eyes never look into mine when he's talking to me. Or others.

Proprietor of the Victoria Curling Club's refreshment centre, Hoffman's steel-grey eyes move hither and thither. Always systematically, mind you, like a tailor checking his latest creation for loose threads.

They cover a hat in jib time, those eyes, then dart down the lapels.

Elmer Hoffman, 53, the button-hunter, developed his slick style only recently. As a matter of fact, it all started with a curling trip to Scotland. Disdaining such articles as tartan shirts, shepherds' crooks, whisky, lochs, and heather—all dear to a Scotsman's heart—Hoffman returned with only an impressive array of curling badges. One from each stop, and then some.

Hoffman has become the No. 1 badge collector at Victoria Curling Club. He had, at last count, about 250, all neatly arrayed in picture frames.

It's a modest total compared to some (one chap in Nova Scotia claims to have 1,000 and another in Ontario boasts of over 800), but the dedication displayed by Elmer indicates that his collection will be doubled within a few years' time.

"Buy, trade, sell or swap" is MacHoffman's motto. A few have been outright donations. The rest have been purchased outright or obtained in a straight swap. In trading, Hoffman usually acquires a number of VCC or Vancouver Island Association pins, and proceeds from there.

This week should be a big one for Elmer. It's bonspiel week in Victoria and there won't be a button unchecked when the visitors step off for refreshments.

How Do Bonspiels Get Started?

Some get rolling by popular demand and sometimes, as the Esquimalt Afternoon Ladies' Club will testify, bonspiels are launched at the insistence of an optimistic individual.

Such an individual is Joseph Iannarelli. Esquimalt's first open women's bonspiel is marked down for the calendar dates Feb. 15-17 and Mr. Iannarelli does not mean to be rude when he proclaims: "I told you so!"

When the fair set of Esquimalt first started thinking about a 'spiel, Iannarelli, the Sports Centre manager, thought it would be "a very fine thing."

Someone brought up the little matter of finances.

The thought of losing money chilled the ladies.

"Look, my dears," said Iannarelli, "you go ahead with your bonspiel. I'll subsidize it if you lose money." Or words to that effect.

Esquimalt's leading optimist was in the clear two weeks ago. The ladies—with 42 rinks accepted—were awed with the success of their first venture.

Can Topping Topple, 'Em?

I admire Dick Topping's views, but I doubt very much if the incoming president of the Dominion Curling Association will be able to alter the present voting procedure of the national body.

Topping, speaking to the annual meeting of the BCCA, said the west "sometimes gets a rough ride" and the voting procedure should be altered to give Western Canada more strength in DCA affairs.

As John Diefenbaker, that lawyer chap from Prince Albert, found out the other night, it is best to have the voting power on your side.

Topping has a case. The DCA has a curling membership of about 130,000, including about 70,000 in the provinces from Manitoba west. Yet the four west provinces hold only 17 of a maximum 54 votes in DCA deliberations.

The only way the west can win its way is to secede, or threaten secession, from the DCA.

SWEEPING UP LOOSE STRAWS: BCCA will continue to use its annual bonspiel as a back door to provide entry into the Interior curling championships. . . . Vernon will be host for the 69th BCCA 'spiel next year. . . . When it comes to bonspiels, none can match Manitoba's. . . . Their 75th rockfest attracted 680 rinks. . . . Twenty-six rinks and 138 sheets of ice were in use this week. . . . A Trafalgar Branch rink skipped by Bobby McIntosh will represent Victoria district in the Royal Canadian Legion's provincial finals at Kamloops, March 1-3. . . . McIntosh, calling the turns for Gordie Robertson, Ivan Wood and Pete McInnis, romped through the five-rink double round-robin with seven straight victories. . . . All other rinks had suffered at least two losses. . . . Sandy Low, Len Toby, Jack Moir and Harold Favel were other challengers.

Nanaimo Boss Says McVie Will Be Back

NANAIMO (CP)—Bill McFarlane, president of the Nanaimo Lacrosse Club, says Arnie Dugan will return this season as coach for a second straight term.

Fred Dawson was named manager to succeed Jack Sherry.

McFarlane also said that he has been in contact with Tommy McVie, and has been assured McVie will return to Nanaimo at the end of the Western Hockey League season.

McVie, a member of the Inter-City Lacrosse League all-star team last year is playing hockey for Portland Buckaroos.

Dunfermline Loses

LISBON (Reuters)—Valencia of Spain beat Dunfermline of Scotland 1-0 in their Inter-Cities Fairs Soccer Cup second-round playoff Wednesday night.

Valencia qualified to meet another Scottish club, Hibernian, in the quarter-finals.

East Eligibility Rules Substituted for Code

MONTREAL (CP)—Rules of eligibility scheduled to be presented at the annual meeting of the Dominion Curling Association at Brandon, Man., next month would prohibit money prizes of more than $150 a player, or $600 a rink, it was affirmed Wednesday.

The rules are those approved last Aug. 13, by the Canadian branch of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club, representing clubs in eastern Ontario and Quebec as far east as Quebec City. Headquarters of the Canadian branch said the rules now are in effect in its jurisdiction.

The Dominion Curling Association, representing clubs in all parts of Canada, had originally proposed a "code of ethics" of its own, but has found the branch's rules of eligibility "worded more suitably."

The change was disclosed in Toronto by Colin A. Campbell of the DCA who has withdrawn a notice of motion for a code of ethics.

If approved, the rules would become effective in the DCA Aug. 1.

Hoop Tourney Starts Fridgy

Three berths in the Vancouver Island-playoff will be at stake when the annual Lower-Island girls' high school basketball tournament opens Friday at North Saanich High.

Oak Bay, Victoria High, Esquimalt, Mount Douglas, Claremont, North Saanich, Milnes Landing and Belmont are entered in the two-day meet, which starts Friday at 4:30.

U.S. Pro Basketball

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION
Boston 126, Syracuse 124
San Francisco 117, Detroit 116,
Chicago 105, Los Angeles 107.

In addition to the cash prize limit for curlers in competitions sanctioned by the DCA, the rules also would prohibit prizes in the form of merchandise readily convertible into money and having a retail value in excess of $150 a person or $600 a rink.

The rules would prohibit a player from receiving directly or indirectly compensation for giving instruction by any means, whether demonstrations, lectures, newspaper articles or other means. One exception would be player's regularly employed in journalism or broadcasting.

The rules also would prohibit a player from accepting travelling and other expenses to play in competitions, except for regularly sanctioned championship tournaments, international tours and the like.

Wagering on curling games would disqualify a player. Reinstatement would be possible once for any player, after a year's waiting period after the last action creating the ineligibility.

Esquimalt Netminders Embroiled in Hot Duel

Navy's Pat Cain and Ron Griffiths of Esquimalt's Pontiac Chiefs continue to wage a hot duel for goaltending honors in the Esquimalt and District Hockey League.

Cain maintains a slim lead in the goals-against averages but his Esquimalt rival boasts the most effective record. Cain's goals-against average is 2.08 compared to the 2.31 mark of Griffiths. The latter, however, has stopped 317 shots for a 91.4 per centage as compared to Cain's .902 record.

Griffiths also has the distinction of being the league's most penalized goalie (20 minutes in 13 games) and the only netminder with a scoring point to his credit. He picked up an assist last week.

Navy meets Victoria College at 7:45 while Army plays Chiefs at 9:15 in Friday's doubleheader at the Sports Centre.

Get Into Election, Unionists Urged

Victoria Labor Council delegates were urged Wednesday to throw themselves into the upcoming general election campaign as their contribution to citizenship month in February.

"The greatest thing this council can do in regard to citizenship month is to get into this federal campaign coming up," political education chairman Fred Bevis said.

The Canadian Labor Congress is sponsoring citizenship month for the first time, choosing medicare and unemployment as the major issues for discussion by labor organizations across the country.

EXPLAINING ROLE

"Never before has Canadian labor taken on the responsibility of telling the role of labor in citizenship," said secretary A. W. Toone. "It is terribly important."

He said it was not necessary to go to the provincial or federal levels to practice citizenship, but the issues there should be known.

Vice-President E. T. Staley, a vice-president also of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said the federation plans to fight an intensive campaign for medicare in B.C.

"The general public is not going to fight us on this," he said, outlining briefly a comprehensive area of coverage.

But citizenship hinges on the breakup of parliament this week, he went on, and the most important aspect is marking the ballot election day.

CHECK VOTES

He said individuals should check on how their local MPs voted on the major issues and bills, and become familiar with the party stand, too.

Unemployment as a perennial issue "has got to stop," said retail clerks' delegate John Nicol. It is a "cancer" on society and is not better today than when the present prime minister gained office, he said.

Harry Anderson, Street Railwaymen's Union, said there is a steady tightening in administration of the Unemployment Insurance Act, making it more and more difficult to draw benefits.

Vice-President E. T. Staley, a vice-president also of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said the federation plans to fight an

IMMIGRANT COST

Painter's Union delegate Gus Gildemeester said consideration should be given to the cost of keeping immigrants for periods of time when they have no means and no employment, then get work at the expense of others.

"If they can't support themselves, don't admit them," he said. "I'm sorry that people in other lands have to submit to privation, but Canadians come first."

CURRENTLY on a nationwide lecture tour, Hazel R. Harrison of Santa Monica, Calif., will speak at a public meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Central Junior High School auditorium. Miss Harrison, a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, was invited to Victoria by the First Church of Christ. Her topic will be "Mankind's Hopes for the Future."

LÉSAGE GOES DIRECT TO VANIER

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Lesage has inscribed on the legislature order paper a motion asking Governor General Vanier to have legislation placed before the Commons authorizing construction of a $50,000,000 tunnel and bridge across the St. Lawrence River in Montreal Harbor.

A federal law authorizing the construction is needed because the bridge and tunnel will cross navigable waters which come under the federal government.

Normally a simple letter to the federal cabinet would suffice.

But because of the political situation in Ottawa and because of a spat between the provincial and federal cabinets over construction of another bridge at Trois-Rivières, the Quebec government has decided to go to the titular head of the federal administration.

'ONLY MASS MEDIUM IN CANADA THAT IS FREE'

Keep CBC Independent, Union Plea

A plea to keep the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation independent, but publicly-owned system was made to Victoria Labor Council delegates Wednesday by council vice-president E. T. Staley. He said there are attempts being made in Canada to discredit the 26-year-old Crown corporation.

"It behooves all of us to be concerned about that," he said.

"It is the only mass medium in Canada that is free. If we ever lose the CBC, we will lose one of the greatest things in Canada," the council officer declared.

The subject arose when delegate Jack Chapman, of the International Typographical Union, complained of the "slanted news coverage" about a strike that has blacked out newspapers in New York since late last year.

All of New York city's daily newspapers are shut down, resulting in 4,000 ITU members and 6,500 American Newspaper Guild members being on the street.

News media elsewhere have blamed the blackout entirely on the unions. Mr. Chapman said. "The fact is that only four papers were struck (by the ITU) and the other four were closed by their publishers."

"This brings out the fact that the communications media is a cartel. It is almost impossible to get unbiased information to the public. If we are not going to have the facts brought out, how are we going to have unbiased information?" he asked.

The delegate said recently 25,000 unionists paraded in New York in support of the strike, and that such a display of solidarity is "obviously news."

"Yet, not a line appeared in the press, to my knowledge," he said.

The strike has been taken up editorially in other newspapers, based upon the biased information, he said.

"It is a springboard for further restrictive legislation on labor," Mr. Chapman claimed. "Mr. Staley said the same influences could be brought to bear on the CBC if it is not kept free."

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly, bloated disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Socred Policy Said Hindrance to Ferry

The Social Credit government is being unfair to free enterprise by not giving a clear statement on expropriation policy, New Democrat Tony Gargrave charged Wednesday.

He said such an "intolerable" situation exists concerning plans for a ferry service between Comox and Powell River.

Comox M.L.A. Dan Campbell earlier announced the highways department was making a study of the prospects for a Toll Authority ferry.

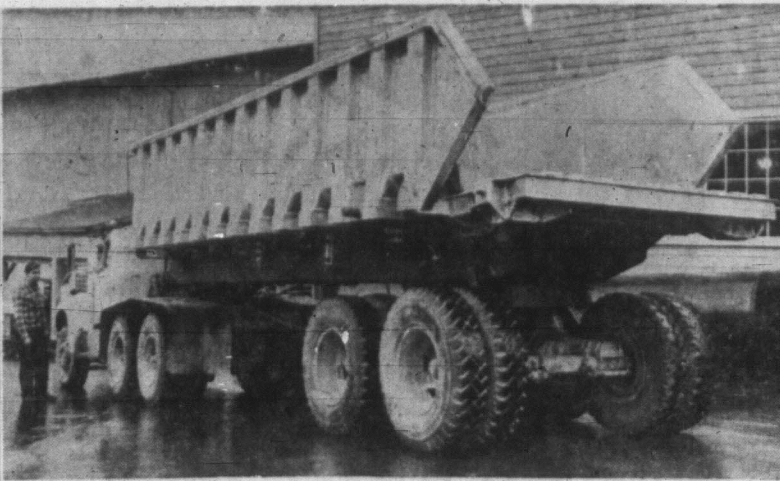

"The Toll Authority has been lax," Mr. Gargrave said. "The survey should have been done last year because there has been no service for 18 months."

In the meantime a private operator is prepared to spend $500,000 on the service, seeks no government subsidy, and will build new ships.

"He is not afraid of competition from the government, but if he is forced out he wants assurance of adequate and fair compensation."

"I'm not clear where this government stands on adequate and fair compensation for expropriation of industry. It's about time it indicated a clear statement."

"It's intolerable for a private businessman to wait around while the government makes up its mind."

BELIEVED a Canadian "first" for the heavy hauling industry, this all-aluminum conversion on an ore-carrying truck boosts capacity from 27 to 35 tons per load. The box was made by Yarrows Ltd. shipyard from Alcan stock for B.C. Cement Co. to haul lime rock the nine miles along a private highway between Cobble Hill quarry and Bamberton cement plant. Modified shipbuilding techniques were used in welding the 6,200 pounds of aluminum plate and extrusion together.

Ex-Hustlers Get Together For Reunion

Thirty-three members of the old Centennial Methodist Church Hustlers' Club became teen-agers again at a recent reunion at the Empress Hotel.

The Hustlers were a young men's group in existence from 1923 to 1938 which used to sponsor CPR moonlight dance cruises in the '20s to raise money for the church auxiliary and other charities. Many of the members had not seen each other for nearly 40 years.

Nanaimo Backs First High Rise

NANAIMO—First high-rise apartment block on Vancouver Island north of Victoria will be a 14-storey, 72-unit structure approved for downtown Nanaimo.

A $1,000,000 undertaking by Newcastle Realty Ltd., the apartment is planned for erection on the corner of Front at Comox overlooking the business district and waterfront.

Advisory planning commission agreed to alter zoning regulations to accommodate the extraordinary height. City council earlier approved rezoning the land for apartment use.

Each suite or apartment will have its own balcony, giving the building an airy facade.

HEATED POOL

There will be heated pool, two penthouses, elevators and parking beneath the foundation slab or on surrounding setback. Bachelor, one and two-room apartments will be both sound and fireproof.

Realtor Jack Geisler told the commission:

"This is the largest single private undertaking in Nanaimo and is second in cost only to the new regional hospital."

Architect is Wilfred Buttjeo of Vancouver, who designed Bickerton Court and Rudyard Kipling in Victoria.

Owners will be F. M. McGregor and associates of Victoria, and George Biely Construction Co. Ltd., Vancouver, which is building the Rudyard Kipling on the Oak Bay Waterfront.

New Judge Welcomes New Citizens

Twenty-nine men, women and children formally became Canadians at a ceremony in County Court Wednesday as Judge M. L. Tyrwhitt-Drake swore them in and gave them certificates of citizenship.

It was the judge's first citizenship ceremony since he was elevated to the bench Jan. 7. The new Canadians were welcomed by United Church minister Dr. F. E. H. James, who recalled his own birthplace in southern Ireland and arrival in Canada as a young boy 51 years ago.

"You all bring a rich culture to this country and make a contribution to Canada," he said.

"One of the finest things my mother and father did was to decide to come to Canada," Dr. James assured the group.

The new citizens are: Karin Heidmarie Botten, Adriaan Cornelius Boogars, Hendrika Maria Boogars, Liberator Colantonio, Janecz (John) Dijk, Maria Dijk, Irmgard Elfrid Elsassner, Pauline Fiederer;

Peter Juergen Finster, Vincenzo Greco, Friedrich Korfmann, Elise Anna Korfmann, Lai Fung (Arthur) Lee, Vincenzo Malorano, Georges (George) Marois; Hanns Jorg Melber, Rosina Melber, Maria Roza Nagy, Sandor (Alexander) Papp, Anton Penn, Gertrude Penn; Bela Sahin Toth, Klara Rita Sahin Toth, Francisus Johannes Petrus Schwagly, Petronella Johanna Catharina Schwagly, Marja (Maria) Soalski, Turek, Imre Jozsef Viglasi.

TORY CHOICE THIS WEEK

COURTENAY—Nominating convention for a Conservative candidate in Comox-Alberni federal riding is expected to be announced this week.

Tories are the only party without a candidate, even though the general election April 8 was announced only Wednesday.

Alberni alderman Tom Barnett, New Democratic Party incumbent member, and Mrs. Hazel Fee, Qualicum Social Credit candidate, already have been chosen to contest the seat.

Flood Waters Surround Comox Homes

COURTENAY—Almost continuous rain for 24 hours, combined with high winds and tides, spilled rivers and creeks in the district over their banks Wednesday.

Several homes along Comox, Headquarters, and Dove Creek roads were surrounded with water from high run-off in the Tsolum River.

A flood peak predicted for high tide at 2 p.m. was less than expected. Rain had stopped falling in the forenoon.

Water flooded over the Island Highway at several points and highways department workers were limiting traffic flow to a single lane at the city limits and at Hindu Creek north of Buckley Bay.

Workers also were checking on a reported washout on the Forbidden Plateau Road.

Minor flooding was reported from Sayward, north of Campbell River, but traffic was continuing to flow, the department said.

No major damage was reported in the district. Lewis Park and some of the homes involved experience flooding frequently in wet years.

A B.C. Hydro spokesman said the area was "amazingly lucky" in escaping any unusual line trouble from the high winds overnight.

Fire Razes Pioneer Island Home

GANGES—Fire destroyed the 73-year-old home of a pioneer resident and his sister-in-law on Booth Canal Road Tuesday night.

Octogenarian Cecil E. Baker, and the widow of the late Dr. G. R. Baker, Quesnel, escaped unhurt with only the clothes they wore, at about 11:30 p.m.

Fire Chief Fred Donaghy said the probable cause was faulty wiring. His volunteer fire-fighters were not able to save the two-storey structure.

The Bakers are living meanwhile with Mrs. Joyce Bowden Baker of Ganges, a daughter-in-law.

Part of the estimated $9,000 loss was insured.

Two Sentenced To Six Months For Pitlamping

DUNCAN—Two local men, Jacob Joe and Cleoro August, pleaded guilty in police court Wednesday to pitlamping and carrying loaded firearms in a motor vehicle.

Unable to pay the minimum fine of $500 for the first offence and $20 for the second offence, both men were sent to Oakalla Prison for 60 days on each charge, to run concurrently.

RCMP stated the two men were checked in town by Const. J. H. Shermak at 4:40 a.m. with two deer and two loaded rifles in the car.

Waiting Police Ambush Bandit

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police waited outside a downtown bank Wednesday until the man inside finished robbing it, then arrested him as he walked out.

A total of $2,145 and a revolver were seized.

Police said restaurant manager Louise Miloff telephoned them she saw a man standing outside the bank.

"He had a gun in his hand," she said later. "He stood there for some minutes, then went into the bank."

Police arrived almost immediately. They chose to wait outside rather than risk a gunfight inside the Bank of Nova Scotia branch.

Also, as it was closing time, the bank staff had locked the door behind the man as he entered.

A charge of armed robbery was laid against Albert Smith, 48-year-old unemployed marine engineer.

Nine-Month Term For Possession Of Stolen Ring

Ronald Lloyd, 3275 Milgrove, was sentenced to nine months definite and three months indeterminate thereafter in the Young Offenders' Unit for being in possession of a diamond ring stolen from a Rockland Avenue house on New Year's Eve.

He had obtained the ring in what defence counsel Ian Stewart described as a "stupid transaction," and had later given it to a girl friend.

He admitted the charge.

TALENTED COUPLE SHARES PROGRAM WITH STUDENT NURSES

Soloists, Chorus Excel in Concert

By AUDREY S.T.D. JOHNSON
A well-planned program, the various numbers illustrative of an excellent song repertoire, formed the concert, presented Wednesday night by Victoria Musical Art Society.

Featured artists were W. H.
Gregory, baritone; Evelyn Gregory, pianist; and the Royal Jubilee Hospital Student Nurses' Glee Club.

Oak Bay Junior High School Auditorium should have been filled to capacity for this concert. Its highlights were worth going a good distance and emptying one's pockets to hear.

Mr. Gregory has a voice of quite remarkable range and natural power. It did appear, however, that the lower part of this range is superior in voice placement and timbre.

In upper areas the tone tends to slip back, becoming muffled with a consequent blurring of diction.

ART SONGS FINEST

Of the three groups of solos, the final one consisting of 20th century art songs was perhaps the finest interpretively.

Vaughan Williams' "The Vagabond", Quilter's "Blow, Blow Thou Winter Wind", El-gar's "In the Dawn", and Richard Strauss' "Devotion" were among the most memorable.

Mr. Gregory also included a group of operatic arias—Handel and Verdi—and some early works by Peri and Arne.

Accompanying her husband at the piano, Mrs. Gregory proved to be an alert and sympathetic partner. Her competent piano technique was further demonstrated in a solo group which included the Scarlati-Tausig Pastorale and a group of arrangements of folk songs.

After approximately nine rehearsals under their director,
Mrs. Mary Wood, the 1962 student nurses enchanted everyone with the beauty of their singing.

Soprano tone of the most exquisite purity was notable in descant passages, but the whole group achieved an as-

Owl Attacks Man

DORDRECHT (Reuters) — A huge white snow owl, a bird seen only six times in the last 60 years in The Netherlands, twice attacked a 22-year-old man here Wednesday. The man abandoned his motorcycle and fled into a meadow.

Arms for B. Guiana?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Evening Star, quoting informed government sources, said Wednesday Cuba has begun shipping Soviet arms to British Guiana.

ounding smoothness of vocal line, blend and balance, producing a total sound that was thrilling to hear.

Interpretively they conveyed delightful effects—tenderness and serenity in Brahms'

"The Little Sandman," lilting rhythmic buoyancy in Handel's "Let Us Dance" and Sara's "Gay is the Rose."

Mrs. Wood accompanied the group at the piano.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1963—PAGE 17

Arthur Mayse

To set the record straight for SUPPORTER OF THE CBC, I'm by no means in favor of destroying the dear old hippopotamus as charged in his letter to the editor this week.

I would merely put government radio and government television on a diet stringent enough to melt-off the excess blubber.

That, in substance, is the view I aired Jan. 15, and I see no reason to alter it.

Basically, government participation in the mass entertainment field seems wrong to me. I accept it personally only because I'm faced with a devil's choice—The Virginian's 90 American minutes of toshful dreariness, let's say, against a Canadian hour of primitive Mexican art.

Mind, I have no quarrel with Mexican art, past or present. But is the interest of tax-paying Canadians in this and other such esoterics wide enough to justify the expenditure of time and money required to present them on a national network?

I think not; and the fact that I enjoy numerous CBC productions, including such truly superb documentaries as "Big Country," isn't going to keep me from criticizing certain aspects of a service I help pay for.

In these views, and any other philistine utterances you may stumble upon in this corner, I speak for myself only. By misrepresentation, or perhaps ignorance of a columnist's function on a newspaper, SUPPORTER makes my views those of the "financial interests" that employ me.

The fact that I work for the Times should indicate that in general terms at least, I support what this paper stands for. But the whole virtue of a columnist is that he speaks for himself, and in a free press, is paid to do exactly that.

When or if you read me here, you're getting one man's views, reactions, likes and dislikes, foibles and prejudices. The fact that these may sometimes run counter to the formal editorial policies of this journal is understood and accepted by both publisher and columnist.

So, SUPPORTER, disagree with me if you will. That's your privilege, just as it's mine in a free press to take a cut at the CBC.

But don't mislabel me an interpreter of Times policies when I'm writing in this corner.

Here, I speak for no one but myself.

I offer now a leftover gleaming from our current legislative session. The other day, an officer candidate class of navy chiefs and petty officers boarded our provincial ship of state for an afternoon cruise.

"Poor discipline," was their verdict, "and too much skylarking."

PO "Kip" Holloway of Amherst, N.S., was jolted by what seemed to be a total disregard for the speech-makers.

"The other members don't bother to listen," he said. "They're always bobbing in and out. I saw one guy get up, go out, and come back in five separate times."

On another point, the sailors had a criticism to offer. They counted eight plaques in the rotunda commemorating army war dead, but none honoring the men the navy lost.

"It shouldn't be," one protested. "Not in Victoria, the navy's west coast home."

Science Talk Set Tuesday For Teachers

Trends in scientific education in high schools will be discussed in a lecture by Dr. A. B. Van Cleave, professor of chemistry at the University of Saskatchewan, at a meeting in the Castle, Royal Roads, Victoria, next Tuesday at 8 p.m.

All principals and science teachers on Vancouver Island are invited to attend the meeting, which is being held under auspices of the Chemical Institute of Canada, Vancouver Island branch.

"This talk will indicate what may be expected in the near future in the way of curricula developments in high schools," says Charles A. C. Porter, secretary of the branch.

PROVE HELPFUL

"It should prove most helpful to everyone interested in science education. There is no need for advance notification, and those interested should just present themselves at the Castle, Royal Roads, just before 8 p.m."

Dr. Van Cleave, who is a PhD of both McGill and Cambridge universities, has long interested himself in chemical education.

Two Boys Fined On Series Of Thefts

Two youths were given suspended sentences and fined in city police court today in connection with theft and damage of a number of pay phones in the city and theft of hubcaps early on the morning of Jan. 25.

Evan R. Waite was given a one-year suspended sentence and fined $50 on two wilful damage charges, and was fined $25 on each of four charges of theft and one of attempted theft, for a total of $175.

Frederick A. Suffern received $50 fines on each of three wilful damage charges, $25 on each of five charges of theft and one attempted theft, and was handed a one-year suspended sentence for breaking into Goodwill Bottling Ltd., 35 Erie, Sept. 22, stealing $16. His fines amounted to $300.

NEAR SCHOOL

The court was told the two youths were in a party of five who stole two hubcaps from an unidentified vehicle near Victoria High School, and four more from another car in the Fairfield district.

The carload of youths then proceeded to Bay and Fernwood where they rifled a pay phone, and to Cook and Hillside where the offence was repeated. An attempt was made to rob a phone at Hillside and Quadra before Waite was driven home.

Suffern then participated in burglary of the Catherine and Langford phone.

Court ordered $13.65 found in Suffern's possession, and $12.40 in Waite's be returned to the B.C. Telephone Co.

Board Backs Union Bar To Reds

An arbitration board has given the opinion that a union may deny membership to a Communist or Communist sympathizer.

The board was asked to rule on whether McCarter Shingle Co. Ltd., of Victoria, was required to discharge Jack Arnold Smith, according to the collective agreement between the company and Shingle Weavers' Union Local 2802, International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

Mr. Scott won by almost a three-to-one margin in the Alma Mater Society elections. He will hold office for the 1963-64 academic year.

A fourth-year student in the UBC faculty of commerce, Mr. Scott is a former student of Victoria College and Glenlyon Preparatory School.

The French Film Committee's next presentation, "Le Passage Du Rhine," will be shown at the Fox Theatre Monday, Feb. 25. This is the story of the 1944-45 offensive through northern France which culminated in the crossing of the Rhine.

Provincial horticulturist Alan Little will give a tree-pruning demonstration sponsored by Gordon Head Garden Club in the orchard of L. V. Jones, 4200 Tyndall Avenue, near Kenmore, Saturday at 2:30 p.m.

The annual auction of Victoria Short Wave Club will be held at the club house, 2500 Foul Bay Road, on Friday.

Petticoat Brigade For Civil Defence, First in Canada

Canada's first all-girl civil defence rescue squad—the petticoat brigade—began training Wednesday in a 10-week program at CD headquarters, 1840 Blanshard.

They will learn light rescue techniques, first aid rudiments, mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and general principles of civil defence.

Ten women, eight of them married, went to the first lecture and another seven are enrolled.

The only thing close to this in Canada, to my knowledge, is the Montreal Women's First Aid Ski Patrol," said instructor Clint Fotheringham.

Precedent for the course is Mrs. Winnifred MacLeod, first woman to take the male rescue course at Canadian Civil Defence College, Arnprior, who is assistant to Mr. Fotheringham.

Trainees were welcomed by Victoria-Esquamalt CD coordinator V. S. Godfrey, were issued coveralls, helmets and equipment, heard an outline of the course and saw a British film on disasters, titled, "Let's Face It."

Classes will be held weekly from 7:30-9:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Most applicants—who must be between 18 and 40—answered an advertisement published by civil defence, although several women's groups were contacted by the organization.

"NOT SO RUDDY TIGHT," exclaims "petticoat brigadier" Mrs. R. H. Leir as her sashcord cinch gets a pull from Mrs. John McDowall at civil defence headquarters. Both are wives of RCN commanders.

Couple Pickets Legislature In Court Protest

A young couple picketed the legislature today protesting treatment in the courts.

Mr. and Mrs. Vic Redman of Surrey were parading in front of the buildings with signs reading "Impeach Judge H. J. Sullivan"...

Mr. Redman, 31, an electrician, says his troubles began in a dispute with neighbors in 1959.

In March 1961 he was convicted of assault after grabbing Richmond Magistrate R. C. Palmer by the collar.

He is disputing an appeal heard by Mr. Justice Sullivan in Supreme Court at which, he says, he was not allowed to conduct his own defence.

An official of the attorney-general's department said the Redmans were assured in an interview Wednesday that the transcript of evidence in the case would be obtained and an inquiry made.

Hotel Rapped In Fire Deaths

A coroner's jury Wednesday accused Willows Hotel management of "deplorable" lack of precaution in the Jan. 19 fire at Campbell River that claimed four lives.

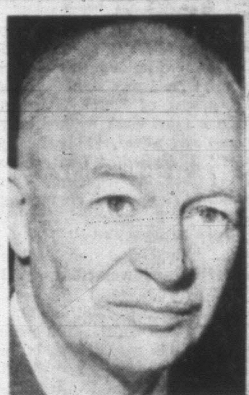

Fire Chief Oscar Thulin said he had always feared a fire disaster in the old building which, he said, was regularly used by volunteer firefighters in their practices.

The jury heard evidence that two of the hotel's wiring circuits were antiquated and not up to provincial standards.

It was told that one fire escape exit had to be made through a linen storage room which was kept locked to avoid theft.

The jury decided: "There was a deplorable failure to make use of what fire prevention and warning facilities were available. No instruction or direction in the use of the facilities was given to those responsible for the welfare of the hotel's patrons."

Killed in the $250,000 fire were loggers Gerry Heenan, 35; Charles Knutson, 48; Sven Lindgren, 35, and carpenter Robert Lowe, 42. All were from Campbell River.

Resting under doctor's orders at the Veterans' Hospital is Dr. Brock Chisholm, central figure in many controversies, and former head of the World Health Organization. Dr. Chisholm was to have been speaker at the spring conference of the Unitarian Fellowship of Vancouver Island in the War Amps' Hall, 1610 Oak Bay Avenue, this weekend. The conference has been postponed on account of his indisposition.

Government House Employee Faces Negligence Trial

Hendrick Witteveen, 2721

Shelbourne, was committed in city police court today for trial on a charge of criminal negligence in a New Year's Day fatal accident.

Defence presented no evidence in his preliminary hearing which ended Wednesday.

The PCCLI soldier employed at Government House was charged with criminal negligence, impaired driving, and failure to remain at the scene of the accident at Richmond and Bay where 79-year-old pedestrian Arthur Vincent Seear was hurled 40 feet when in collision with a car.

Mr. Seear died in Veterans' Hospital Jan. 4 as a result of the accident.

Applications Called For City Prosecutor

Call for applications to fill the post of city prosecutor was made by finance committee today.

The parking commission spokesman last week suggested the deficit might need only a two-mill levy.

The parking commission budget estimated 1963 revenue at $75,000 and expenditures at $114,160, including $33,404 for servicing the debenture debt.

Mr. Bramley pointed out that only 138 car parking spaces were available to earn revenues last month and this capacity would build up to 600 car spaces later in the year.

Monthly revenue estimates projected an increase from last month's $2,225 receipts to an expected high of $8,100 in September.

Mr. Bramley said the total assessment in the special area was $10,741,285, requiring a .331 mill levy to cover every $10,000 of loss.

He said the special levy would be added to tax bills and would become payable July 31.

Dismissal Plea Refused By Court

Confused burglar David Frankham, 2981 Borden, testified in Central Saanich police court Wednesday that Larry A. Preston, 33 Regina, was with him when he broke into Butler Bros. Supplies, Keating Cross Road, Jan. 2, stealing dynamite and blasting caps.

He was giving evidence at Preston's preliminary hearing. He already has pleaded guilty to the joint charge.

Frankham said the two youths stole 16 sticks of dynamite "and a couple of boxes" of caps, hiding them in a pump house at Beaver Lake.

Preston asked Magistrate William Ostler for a "dismissal," saying nothing had been proved against him.

The magistrate pointed out that he was not trying the case, and was interested only in whether or not there was a case against the accused.

"I am satisfied that there is," he said.

The hearing was adjourned to Feb. 12 for further adjournment to allow Preston time to prepare his defence.

Civic Union Rejects Prison Labor Scheme

Civic Outside Workers' Union has flatly rejected a plan to use penitentiary inmates for certain Victoria-owned rural park development.

Charles Thompson, outside workers' delegate to Victoria Labor Council, told a meeting Wednesday:

"The union won't go along with it. We want some other plan."

He said the union had discovered that doing the work—consisting of clearing land at Durrance Lake, which otherwise would not be done in the foreseeable future—would cost the city no less than if it were done under winter works plan by civic employees.

Mr. Thompson said the proposed plan would mean that the city would supply the equipment and the senior governments would pay the wages.

He noted that warden T. W. Hall of B.C. Penitentiary, has said that funds would come from outside the penitentiary budget.

This, then, is the same as winter works method, where civic employees get the wages.

COMMUNITY INTEREST

Secretary A. W. Toone, who also is a city alderman, reminded delegates that labor had agreed to the principle of assisting the rehabilitation of prisoners in ways such as this.

It was "a thing of community interest," and provides for work which would otherwise not be done.

Mr. Toone advised the union not to make a hasty decision, but wait until all information is available.

2-Year Sentence For Break-In At Liquor Store

Paul Schultz, 870 Esquamalt, was sentenced in Sidney police court Wednesday to two years in prison for breaking into the government liquor store in Sidney Dec. 29.

The sentence is to run concurrently with a three-year term imposed in city police court Tuesday for a burglary at Spencer's store in Victoria Jan. 3.

Raymond J. Telford from Vancouver, who was acquitted of the city charge, was remanded in Sidney Court on the liquor store break-in, to Feb. 23 for trial.

Ask The Times

Q. Can robins fly all the way from the mainland? I always understood they weren't capable of flights that long even though they migrate. R.E.S.

A. Yes; it is possible to see great flocks of American robins flying over the straits to Victoria from the American side. Many of the birds fly from the northern tip of Vancouver Island over the water to the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Instead of going directly over the water to the Queen Charlotte Islands, many robins fly up the coast of B.C. and then land on the Queen Charlottes. The shortest distance between these islands and the coast is 55 miles.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be submitted daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve problems or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Topics of the Day

A 20-year-old girl was charged in Esquimalt police court today with theft of a quantity of jewelry and clothing from a neighbor's residence.

Maureen Ash, 860 Admirals, was remanded without plea to Monday for election.

The charge was laid in connection with a burglary at the home of Duncan L. MacDonnell, 870 Admirals, Tuesday.

Mrs. O. A. Brake gave an illustrated lecture on her recent trip to the Holy Land at a public meeting of Victoria British Israel Association in the Newstead Hall, Tuesday.

"The Immortal Songs of Lady Naima" will be the subject of discussion at the monthly meeting of the Burns Club of Victoria in Holyrood House next Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Kenneth R. Ziefflie, Work Point Barracks, was fined $20 in city police court Wednesday for being in possession of liquor while under age.

He was found in a Yates Street parking lot Jan. 26 with a quarter-gallon of loganberry wine in his possession.

George I. Warren, former publicity commissioner, was elected president of Greater Victoria Citizens Council this week.

Others on the executive are: vice-presidents Mrs. A. Rose and Mrs. D. B. Sparling; treasurer, Mrs. H. Keitchell; recording secretary, Mrs. P. Bissley; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. H. Plows; past president, Mrs. H. L. Smith; directors, Mrs. W. H. Wilson, Mrs. D. Leechman and C. S. Yarwood.

A talk on rock-hounds will be given by George West at a meeting of North Ward and Quadra Primary Schools Auxiliary next Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of North Ward School.

U.S. Internal Revenue Service officials will be at the U.S. Consulate in Vancouver from March 25 to April 11 to assist U.S. citizens in completing their income tax returns.

U.S. citizens abroad must file income tax returns even though their income earned outside the U.S. may be exempt from tax. Canadian citizens who derive income from the U.S. must also file returns on or before April 15.

Appointments with the U.S. tax officials may be made by telephoning the Consulate in Vancouver at MU 5-8474. Vancouver address is Burrard Building, 1030 W. Georgia St.

Jan Kolder was elected president of the White Eagle Association at its annual meeting at 90 Dock Street recently.

Eugen Felter was elected vice-president; Stan Rozlyo, secretary; A. Blvains, assistant secretary; Miss Alicia Kenda, treasurer, and Jan Janada, assistant-treasurer.

"Mysterious Powers of the Human Mind," a tape recording by Theosophical writer Geoffrey Hodson, will be played at a public meeting of Besant Lodge, Theosophical Society, 732 Cormorant Street, Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

Retired Members Group of St. John Ambulance Brigade will meet at headquarters, 941 Pandora Avenue, next Wednesday at 2 p.m.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Don't Forget to Order Your Valentine Flowers

By PENNY SAVER

How about a sweetheart special for $7.50? This is a special for sweethearts and not a sweetheart at that price.

Included in the special are white gladioli, white chrysanthemums, red and candy striped carnations, all artistically arranged in a milk glass pedestal vase. The sweetheart touch comes in chenille roses scattered between the flowers.

If your sweetheart happens to live in another port then rush in and place an order early. You can have it delivered for another 50 cents—price of the service charge. But, if you linger you will have to add the price of a wire to the $7.50.

Red roses, the ever-popular symbol of love, are always a favorite. Prices start at $3.50 a dozen. A bouquet of dainty red garnet, or pink princess roses is a wonderful buy as they will last for two weeks if they receive tender loving care.

Artificial flowers which are becoming less and less artificial (I know I had to sneak down and feel one as I passed a bouquet today) are being arranged with ribbons and bright red chenille hearts.

Potted tulips at $2.50 is something else you might like to buy. I can almost hear you say, "Why, I know where I can buy tulips cheaper than that." Granted there are plenty of tulips selling at lower prices, but if you pay $2.50 and get home and they wilt in a matter of hours you have the right to complain and they will be replaced. As well as the extra trimmings—and the service—this right to scream loud and clear is part of what you get for your money.

The roses were red alright and the violets were blue but artificial—still they make a pretty corsage on a spring suit. Shopping for a sweetheart? Phone Penny at 382-3131.

DEAR ABBY...

Cause for a Headache!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I was in the drug department of a large store. I was writing down the prices of some vitamins when a sales clerk walked over to me and asked, "May I help you?" I replied, "Yes, where can I find the aspirin?" He asked, "Are you comparing prices?" I answered, "Of course, I always do." He replied, "Then find the aspirin yourself" and walked away. I was stunned.

INSULTED. DEAR INSULTED: You were surely within your rights. The sales clerk was rude. You should have reported him to the manager and, believe me, HE'D have soon found the aspirin in anticipation of a big headache.

DEAR ABBY: I am in love with a man who seems crazy over me when we are together, but there is another girl. He says he can't decide between us. I have been waiting for a year for him to make up his mind. He has her picture on his dashboard and it spoils my evening every time I get into his car. He dates me on Mondays and Thursdays and she gets him the rest of the week. Should I demand that he make a choice?

DAILY READER. DEAR READER: When you give a man an ultimatum, be prepared to lose. Your competition may be on the dashboard.

but I think you're the one he is taking for a ride. Beat him to the exit and call it quits.

DEAR ABBY: My wife has an old metal box (she calls it her "treasure chest"). It is filled with junk. Pictures of our children (all grown and gone), their baby shoes and the stuff they made in school. She even has an old gas mask her brother had in World War I. (He's dead now.) She goes through these things every once in a while and has herself a good cry. I told her she was stupid and she should quit living in the past. I even threatened to throw it out if she didn't get rid of it. These old things give me the creeps. Maybe if you told her how childish she was, she'd listen.

NOT SENTIMENTAL. DEAR NOT: If your wife enjoys "living in the past" a little, let her. (It sounds better than the "present" you are giving her.) It's HER junk and they're HER memories, so be patient and be quiet.

CONFIDENTIAL TO D.R.: Everyone complains that the cards are badly shuffled—until he gets a good hand!

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Rummage sale, 89th Air Cadets, Friday at 7 p.m., Wordsworth Hall, Courtney Street.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Many Factors Combine to Produce Sagging Jawline

Women are often unhappy because of a sagging jawline. Many factors combine to produce this, but much can be done to prevent it or minimize it.

General loss of tone in the tissues is one factor. The fatty deposit between the skin and the muscles gradually decreases as the years pass. The natural oil in your outer coating also decreases. Muscles atrophy, to a certain extent.

The muscles and bony structure you inherited also have their effect on your facial muscles. The disposition, which has such a drastic effect on your facial expressions; also play an important part. Your smile, and a generally optimistic attitude, lift the contour of the face, while pessimistic, dour thoughts and tension pull the muscles and the contour downward. There is no doubt about this!

Posture has its effect also. If the head is correctly held (chin parallel to the floor and the top of your head pushing toward the ceiling), the jawline has a much better chance of remaining youthful.

Some very helpful preventive measures for a sagging jawline are good posture, good nutrition which affects all the body tissues, the correct weight, daily lubrication and special exercises. I feel that special exercises for the neck and face are tremendously successful in delaying this sign of age and even preventing it. Here's a good one to use:

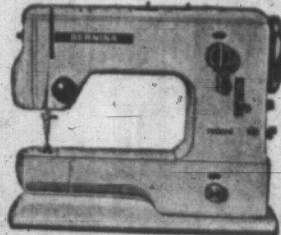

Sit in front of the mirror. Fill the cheeks with air and blow them out. While they are blown up, chew vigorously. Do not forget your facial expressions and mannerisms. Several times a day, think to see whether or not your facial muscles are tense. If so, relax the tension. If your tongue is pushing against the top of your mouth or your front teeth, you are tense.

If you would like to have my exercises for the neck and face, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 9 and 10. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

ALL DAY FRIDAY and SATURDAY FEB. 8 and 9

It's a Preview—On the evening of Friday, February 15, in the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Baker, above, and in many other homes in Victoria, wives will be helping husbands with their ties and husbands will be fastening jewelry and doing up zippers, as couples dress for the annual Symphony Ball in the Empress Hotel, always a highlight of the pre-Lenten season.

Those attending the ball will don coats and wraps (as Mr. and Mrs. Nels Unicum are doing above) in plenty of time to reach the Empress Hotel by 9:30 p.m., when dancing commences. Len Acres' orchestra will play until 1 p.m., and there will be a floor show by professional dancers Hal and Jean Mathers, newcomers to this city. Supper will be served.

—Times Photos by Bill Hallett

Friends will join friends before the ball, as the Unicums and Bakers are doing above, and go on together in parties. As in the past, the ball is in cabaret style. Decorations will be in a red and white motif. Proceeds from the affair, which is sponsored by the Women's Committee of the Victoria Symphony Society, will assist the work of the symphony orchestra.

$701 Spent on Education Work

Education was prominent in the year's work of the Robert Burns McKicking Chapter, IODE, as reported at the annual meeting held in the Colony Hotel on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. H. Barnes, educational secretary, said $701.33 had been spent on this work, with elementary and adopted schools, with students and in special community projects.

A bursary and tuition fees for the child of a blind mother was also given, and records, library books and other publications sent to the Antigua girls' high school. Contributions were made to Municipal bursary fund, secondary education fund and the centennial scholarship fund.

Many Years of Service Recorded

An impressive IODE history of each member and honorary member in Royal Roads Chapter, IODE, was read at annual dinner meeting in the Colonial Inn, Wednesday evening. It was revealed that the members had served in chapters ranging from British Columbia to Nova Scotia.

History was recorded in members' new record book compiled by Mrs. V. H. V. Shepherd, membership chairman.

Chapter's projects for past year had concentrated mainly on education said educational secretary, Miss Helen Rattray.

Total of $308.35 was spent Chapter contributed to all Municipal Chapter's bursary funds, awarded George H. Gardiner bursary of $150 to Ross McConachie, a fourth-year architectural student at the University of British Columbia; sent calendars to school at Metehosin, supplies to adopted school at Minstrel Island and were preparing to help a second adopted school at Williams Harbor in southern Labrador.

Mrs. D. E. Teng, services at home and abroad, said emphasis was being made on assistance to Korean children and other overseas projects.

Mrs. Helen Anderson, treasurer, reported receipts of $1,261.20 and disbursements of $1,173.16. Main money-raising projects were a fall bazaar, rummage sale, sale of crocheted poodles and booties and catering.

An arrangement of red and white tulips and blue cornflowers centred the head table. Miniature Union Jacks and a Red Ensigns and tiny scrolls, bound in red, white and blue, completed decor. Mrs. J. C. F. Blouwey was in charge of dinner arrangements.

Seated with the regent at the head table were Mrs. Shepperd, fourth vice-president of Provincial Chapter; Mrs. Peter Bell, municipal regent; Mrs. J. L. Gates, honorary regent and Mrs. D. E. Teng, honorary vice-regent.

Mrs. Riach was re-elected regent. Other officers are Mrs. B. T. Shaw, first vice-regent; Mrs. Blouwey, second; Mrs. O.

M. Barker, secretary; Mrs. Anderson, treasurer; Miss Rattray, educational secretary; Mrs. R. V. Robinson, Echoes; Mrs. Teng, services at home and abroad and standard bearer, Mrs. Trahan.

Elected as councillors were Mrs. Zabel, Mrs. Crawford and Mrs. L. Brubacher.

Wedding Decor of Red and White

Red and white carnations decorated St. Alban's Anglican Church when Barbara Ellen Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Roberts, 1563 Burton Ave., exchanged vows with Charles William Sallis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sallis, 500 Joffre St.

Rev. F. W. Hayes officiated and Walter Hamilton played "Because" during the signing of the register. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white nylon over taffeta that had seed pearls and sequins highlighting the scalloped neckline. Fitted bodice had tiny cap sleeves. Elbow length veil of white nylon misted from a seed pearl coronet. White carnations and red rosebuds were in the bouquet.

Mrs. David Simmons was patron of honor for her sister. Both Mrs. Simmons and the bridesmaid, Miss Pat McKinnon, wore gowns of red brocade satin, headpieces of matching red roses skirted with red veiling and bouquets of white carnations and red ribbons.

Gordon Flack was best man and Norm Trace ushered guests to their pews.

Brian Kirk proposed the toast to the bride at a reception in the parish hall.

Tiny red rosebuds decorated the three-tier wedding cake, beige suit, toning hat and Red roses and candles, set in accessories and yellow rose fern, completed decor at head bud corsage.

The honeymoon was spent in Vancouver. Newlyweds are now living in Victoria.

As her going-away ensemble, the bride chose a brown and

In Our HOUSE

By Arthur Mayse

On Friday, Santa Bennett hangs his lumpy budget stocking on the legislative mantel, and we can stop guessing about those promised goodies. Meanwhile, the House indulges in considerable doodling.

We were even conducted on a brisk witch hunt Wednesday afternoon by Sacred Tom Bate, our quarry being atheistic educators and colleges whose sex mores appear to be causing the burly Vancouver-Point Grey member alarm bordering on distress.

Since in his preamble, Mr. Bate suggested that the press gallery's antique typewriters cause us to misquote, I will deal with him as faithfully as my notes and his occasionally disjointed utterances allow:

"We try to bring up our children to live decent, Christian lives, we send them to Sunday school. Then when they get of an age to go to university, they are taught by professors to believe there is no such thing as God... that all they've been taught in their childhood about God and religion, is false."

"I don't think there's any place for the teaching of atheism in our schools in a Christian country."

"I for one feel very strongly that taxpayers shouldn't be paying salaries to men who take this stand in our schools and colleges."

Pass the Salt

The indictment strikes me as pretty broad, considering that the professor responsible for the dustup is reported as having made his remarks to a private luncheon meeting of the UBC Philosophy Club, not to a captive audience of shuddering students in a lecture hall. But not to quibble, I return you to Mr. Bate now, shattering a lance against an eastern college reputed (and, this I take with a whole shaker of salt!) to offer a "Sex Is Fun" course.

"Just what is going on in our universities today?" Mr. Bate demanded darkly. "I tell you, a lot of our juvenile delinquency is caused by children brought up in godless homes."

Next number up was NDP Leo T. Nimsick from Cranbrook, who isn't unduly perturbed by the fact that Communism, Socialism and even atheism are subjects enquired into by the colleges.

"I don't think you should try to muzzle anyone," Mr. Nimsick declared. "They teach these things so that the people shall know... you cannot curb the search for knowledge. That's what the John Birch Society is trying to do in the United States."

Worth the Effort

Turning toward an interested gallery group of teenagers wearing identification plaques the size of bread plates, Mr. Nimsick urged the government to bring student observers to the House from all over B.C.

"I think it would be money well spent to stage a contest," he said. "Through such a contest, we could pick students to be brought down here."

Mutter and snort from the SC side: "They might leave the country!"

Time now to go join in the budget guessing game, but a word of explanation first to Mr. Bate.

ADMIRALTY MAN MISSING

LONDON (UPI)—Scotland Yard and security police widened a search today for a 27-year-old Admiralty employee missing for two weeks.

The yard began investigating the disappearance of Brian Davies yesterday. The clerk vanished Jan. 25 and was listed officially as missing Tuesday.

Where Did It Go?

Early morning jolt was received by Gene Vlasak of Bonners Ferry, Idaho, when he went out to his garage beside his home. Rapidly melting snows had ruptured 16-inch culvert and water washed out ground beneath garage and dug ravine to left, leaving car hung by bumper.

'A Frightened Tyrant,' Gargrave Brands Premier

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett was called a frightened tyrant and his government accused of aiding Communists in a hard-hitting attack Wednesday by Tony Gargrave in the legislature.

The New Democratic MLA for Mackenzie roared Social Credit from Real Caouette to Kamloops in a hot half-hour address.

It had overtones of the new federal election campaign, too. "We will restore the constitution," declared the New Democratic Party member for Mackenzie.

He accused the Secreds of supporting the Communist Party in an effort to undermine the trade union movement and the NDP.

He predicted that Social Credit will lose the support of business in the next election.

DON'T HAVE POWER

"They no longer have the power to threaten, to cajole, to shake down business men for campaign funds."

The government had alienated all its potential friends, Mr. Gargrave said.

These included: Doctors (by Premier Bennett's denial he'd seen a pooled risk private medicare plan);

Dentists (presumably by allowing licensing of technicians to deal with the public);

Lawyers (remarks made by the premier at a press conference last year).

Rift Denials Untrue

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The cabinet intrigue of the last week against the leadership of John Diefenbaker now appears to have been effectively ended.

But outraged denials coming from all sections of the Conservative party that such a revolt was never in the making are not based on accuracy.

The denials were given an air of authenticity by the resounding vote of confidence given the prime minister in Wednesday's Tory caucus, just before Mr. Diefenbaker went to Government House to dissolve parliament and name the election day.

It is true that in the caucus none of the disenchanted ministers showed any sign of their true feelings.

SUPPORT PLEDGED

It is also a fact that each member of the cabinet pledged his support to the Prime Minister.

The important fact, however, is that before the Tory party got to this happy and smugly state a group of ministers did plot against the prime minister.

They held meetings towards the end of last week and again at the beginning of this week in their mutual concern over the Prime Ministers lack of decision or firm policy in the economic and defence fields.

Their concern about Mr. Diefenbaker's ability to lead either the party or the nation reached a peak on Jan. 30, when the U.S. state department issued a press release contradicting the prime minister's views on nuclear defence policy.

Mr. Diefenbaker wanted to call an immediate election on the issue of U.S. interference in Canadian affairs. He has since admitted that himself.

But he didn't explain the full reasons for not doing so. He said he realized, however, that such a move might hurt the economy. He did not say that he has dropped his election plan after some of his ministers impressed on him the damage that might be done not only to the economy and to U.S.-Canada relations, but also to the Western alliance.

He said Skripov, the first accredited diplomat to arrive in Australia when Russia reopened diplomatic relations in 1959, had sought the woman's assistance and paid her money.

Barwick said the pair held a number of meetings in public places such as streets and restaurants. These all were under the observation of security agents.

HARKNESS CRISIS

That crisis past, the group of dissident cabinet ministers were faced with a new one—the resignation of Defence Minister Douglas Harkness followed by growing signs the Social Credit group wanted to defeat the government.

Eleven cabinet ministers agreed on Tuesday that Mr. Diefenbaker should go, with Finance Minister George Nowlan named to replace him.

They felt with such a move they could win Social Credit support and avoid the election they thought would hurt the country.

Justice Minister Donald Fleming, on that Tuesday morning, was supposed to visit the prime minister and confront him with the decision. But it never came off.

External Affairs Minister Howard Green said if the prime minister resigned, he would, too. Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton made the same pledge.

Mr. Diefenbaker stayed at home that morning, instead of attending the funeral of Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin. He waited. Two dozen or more reporters and photographers waited outside in his driveway. Nothing happened. The rebels had lost their nerve.

DE GAULLE PROMISES TO TALK U.K. ENTRY

BONN (UPI)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said today that French President Charles de Gaulle has promised to renew discussion of Britain's entry into the European Common Market as soon as the Franco-German treaty is ratified.

The West German leader told Parliament that he is "for British entry into the Common Market above all else."

Then he said de Gaulle has promised to discuss the matter with him once the Paris-Bonn friendship pact is out of the way.

Goodies, Yes; Guesses, No

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett delivers "the goodies" Friday. He has promised there will be some for everybody in his 1963 budget, which he will present to the legislature at 3 p.m.

It will be so "goodly" in fact, he predicted some time ago that people would accuse him of planning an election.

That was not necessarily so, he added. But since that statement was made an election has been called—a federal one.

No doubt Social Credit will want to make the most of a boom budget in B.C. in its nation-wide campaign.

It will be a record budget for B.C., there's no doubt of that.

Estimates of the total spending for the year range from $375,000,000 to $400,000,000.

SPECULATION

As usual, when budget time nears, speculation starts. This time the speculation is about medicare.

Some observers believe the premier will announce a full-blown government plan.

But a lesson was learned in this year's throne speech, subject of tremendous speculation—all false.

The cost of medicare, according to opposition leader Robert Strachan, would be $45,000,000—about $25 per person.

The fact that the government has already promised a number of other costly goals, plus the complete absence of any hint of medicare planning from its chief spokesmen,

make this speculation look pretty thin.

HUGE SURPLUS
But there are some positive predictions.

One is a huge surplus account achieved by spending less than estimated and raking in a great deal more than expected in revenue during 1962.

Mr. Bennett will need to spend a large chunk of this in order to fulfil one of his main pre-budget promises—removal of tolls from five bridges.

The tolls can't be lifted until debt on the bridges is paid off according to the B.C. Toll Authority Act. The debt on the bridges was $33,000,000 at March 31, 1962.

DOUBLED GRANT
The other big promise already made is that the home-owner grant will be doubled to $100.

It would mean spending $26,000,000 instead of the $13,000,000 budgeted last year.

But Mr. Bennett said he would cut off municipal per capita grants—which cost him $12,600,000 in 1962—and replace them with grants in lieu of taxes on provincial buildings.

Another Bennett budget promise is a raise for all B.C.'s 15,000 civil servants, which the B.C. Government Employees Association says could cost about $4,000,000.

Working in River
Of Wet Cement'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Repair crews were to try to span a 130-foot washout on the Trans-Canada Highway near Lytton today with a Bailey Bridge sent from Vancouver.

If this does not work, provincial Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi said it may be necessary to reroute the highway behind Tank Mountain.

Government highway crews cut two detours around the Lytton washout Wednesday only to have both swept into the Thompson River.

An engineer said: "It is like working in a river of wet cement. Mud is still sliding down the mountain and taking everything with it."

Heavy rain fell through most of the Fraser Canyon

Wednesday but had stopped today.

A works supervisor said: "It would not be safe to drive through the canyon even if the road was open."

Meanwhile, the Canadian Pacific Railway track has been cut for the second time this week. A washout 225 feet long and 100 feet deep today left track suspended in air seven miles west of Lytton, 100 air miles east of here.

Trains are being rerouted along the Canadian National Railway line on the opposite side of the Thompson River which is so far unaffected.

Earlier in the week both railways moved passengers by bus and plane between Vancouver and Kamloops when lines were cut.

'FIGHT THE GOOD FIGHT'
... And the Band Played On

HARTLEPOOLS, England (AP)—Hodgson Boagey, 39, came off second best in his battle with a Salvation Army band that disturbed his Sunday afternoon.

Boagey was sitting in his apartment watching television. The band formed up outside his window and played the hymn Fight the Good Fight.

Boagey went outside and shouted to the band to be quiet. That had no effect, so he got a bucket of water and threw it over the band.

The band played on. Boagey threw a dish of hot water.

The band played on. Boagey positioned himself at an upstairs window and hurled lumps of coal at the band. One lump hit a bandman on the head. Another made a dent in a trombone.

The band played on—except for one instrumentalist who fetched a policeman.

Dief Made Deal

(Times News Services)

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Diefenbaker has promised to play down anti-Americanism in the coming election campaign to avoid a cabinet revolt against his leadership, authoritative sources said today.

But Mr. Diefenbaker indicated Wednesday night the dispute with the United States over nuclear weapons policy would be a campaign issue.

"Our policy is to ensure a strong Canada, economically and politically, whose freedom will be ensured without a loss of sovereignty or domination by any other country," the Conservative party leader said.

"We want a Canada which, while interdependent, will always be independent," he said. "Our policy will always be made in Canada."

ON TELEVISION

Diefenbaker, who has accused the U.S. of interfering in Canada's internal affairs, spoke on a nationwide television program, as did the leaders of three opposition parties.

The sources said a number of rebel cabinet ministers threatened to resign en masse unless Diefenbaker agreed to go soft on the dispute, which led to the collapse of his minority government.

The ministers issued the ultimatum because they feared an anti-U.S. campaign would hurt the party and Canada's economy by frightening away American investment, the sources said.

Lester B. Pearson, the Liberal party leader, said on the television program that it would be wrong to make Canadian-American relations a major issue.

'UNFORTUNATE'

Robert N. Thompson, Social Credit party leader, agreed that it would be "very unfortunate" if anti-Americanism became an important campaign issue.

Thompson said the rift between Washington and Ottawa was "just a symptom of the real issue of the election—the great need for leadership in this country."

The third opposition party leader on the program, T. C. Douglas of the New Democrats, did not directly mention the dispute but said he would appeal to the electorate to "reject in clear terms nuclear weapons for this country."

Diefenbaker and the leaders of the other parties faced a grueling two-month election campaign expected to be one of the roughest in Canada's 96-year history. Some 10 million Canadians will cast their ballots at the end of it.

Mr. Diefenbaker has announced no definite campaign plans yet.

FIRST SHOTS

Mr. Pearson probably will fire the first campaign shots at a party meeting in Ottawa next Monday.

Conservative MPs and senators met with key Conservative party headquarters personnel for more than three hours today to plot election strategy.

Petticoat Brigade For Civil Defence First in Canada

Canada's first all-girl civil defence rescue squad—the petticoat brigade—began training Wednesday in a 10-week program at CD headquarters, 1840 Blanshard.

They will learn light rescue techniques, first aid, rudiments, mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and general principles of civil defence.

Ten women, eight of them married, went to the first lecture and another seven are enrolled.

"The only thing close to this in Canada, to my knowledge, is the Montreal Women's First Aid Ski Patrol," said instructor Clint Fotheringham.

Precedent for the course is Mrs. Winnifred MacLeod, first woman to take the male rescue course at Canadian Civil Defence College, Arnprior, who is assistant to Mr. Fotheringham.

Trainees were welcomed by Victoria-Esquamalt CD coordinator V. S. Godfrey, were issued coveralls, helmets and equipment, heard an outline of the course and saw a British film on disasters, titled, "Let's Face It."

Classes will be held weekly from 7:30-9:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Most applicants—who must be between 18 and 40—answered an advertisement published by civil defence, although several women's groups were contacted by the organization.

"NOT SO RUDDY TIGHT," exclaims "petticoat brigadier" Mrs. R. H. Leir as her sashcord cinch gets a pull from Mrs. John McDowall at civil defence headquarters. Both are wives of RCN commanders.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1963—PAGE 17

Arthur Mayse

To set the record straight for SUPPORTER OF THE CBC, I'm by no means in favor of destroying the dear old hippopotamus as charged in his letter to the editor this week.

I would merely put government radio and government television on a diet stringent enough to melt off the excess blubber.

That, in substance, is the view I aired Jan. 15, and I see no reason to alter it.

Basically, government participation in the mass entertainment field seems wrong to me. I accept it personally only because I'm faced with a devil's choice—The Virginian's 90 American minutes of toothy dreariness, let's say, against a Canadian hour of primitive Mexican art.

Mind, I have no quarrel with Mexican art, past or present. But is the interest of tax-paying Canadians in this and other such esoterics wide enough to justify the expenditure of time and money required to present them on a national network?

I think not; and the fact that I enjoy numerous CBC productions, including such truly superb documentaries as "Big Country," isn't going to keep me from criticizing certain aspects of a service I help pay for.

In these views, and any other phillistine utterances you may stumble upon in this corner, I speak for myself only. By misrepresentation, or perhaps ignorance of a columnist's function on a newspaper, SUPPORTER makes my views those of the "financial interests" that employ me.

The fact that I work for the Times should indicate that in general terms at least, I support what this paper stands for. But the whole virtue of a columnist is that he speaks for himself, and in a free press, is paid to do exactly that.

Science Talk Set Tuesday For Teachers

Trends in scientific education in high schools will be discussed in a lecture by Dr. A. B. Van Cleave, professor of chemistry at the University of Saskatchewan, at a meeting in the Castle, Royal Roads, Victoria, next Tuesday at 8 p.m.

All principals and science teachers on Vancouver Island are invited to attend the meeting, which is being held under auspices of the Chemical Institute of Canada, Vancouver Island branch.

"This talk will indicate what may be expected in the near future in the way of curricular developments in high schools," says Charles A. C. Porter, secretary of the branch.

PROVE HELPFUL

"It should prove most helpful to everyone interested in science education. There is no need for advance notification, and those interested should just present themselves at the Castle, Royal Roads, just before 8 p.m."

Dr. Van Cleave, who is a PhD of both McGill and Cambridge universities, has long interested himself in chemical education.

Two Boys Fined On Series Of Thefts

Two youths were given suspended sentences and fined in city police court today in connection with theft and damage of a number of pay phones in the city and theft of hubcaps early on the morning of Jan. 25.

Evan R. Waite was given a one-year suspended sentence and fined $50 on two wilful damage charges, and was fined $25 on each of four charges of theft and one of attempted theft, for a total of $175.

Frederick A. Sufferin received $50 fines on each of three wilful damage charges, $25 on each of five charges of theft and one attempted theft, and was handed a one-year suspended sentence for breaking into Goodwill Bottling Ltd., 35 Erie, Sept. 22, stealing $16. His fines amounted to $300.

NEAR SCHOOL

The court was told the two youths were in a party of five who stole two hubcaps from an unidentified vehicle near Victoria High School, and four more from another car in the Fairfield district.

The carload of youths then proceeded to Bay and Fernwood where they rifled a pay phone, and to Cook and Hillside where the offence was repeated. An attempt was made to rob a phone at Hillside and Quadra before Waite was driven home.

Sufferin then participated in burglary of the Catherine and Langford phone.

Court ordered $13.65 found in Sufferin's possession, and $12.40 in Waite's be returned to the B.C. Telephone Co.

Board Backs Union Bar To Reds

An arbitration board has given the opinion that a union may deny membership to a Communist or Communist sympathizer.

The board was asked to rule on whether McCarter Shingle Co. Ltd., of Victoria, was required to discharge Jack Arnold Smith, according to the collective agreement between the company and Shingle Weavers' Union Local 2802, International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

The international constitution of the union requires applicants for membership to answer the questions "Are you a Communist?" and "Are you in sympathy with Communism?"

NOT GOOD FAITH

It was considered that in refusing to answer these questions and others, Smith did not make application in good faith.

"It is impossible to come to any other conclusion than that Smith was most reluctant to become a member of Local 2802," the board ruled.

Condition of employment is that a worker must belong to the union.

The firm asked the board to comment on whether an international union could deny membership to Communists or Communist sympathizers.

This was not at issue, the board said, but it could find no reason why a union did not have the right to protect itself from the incursions of Communism.

Couple Pickets Legislature In Court Protest

A young couple picketed the legislature today protesting treatment in the courts.

Mr. and Mrs. Vic Redman of Surrey were parading in front of the buildings with signs reading "Impeach Judge H. J. Sullivan."

Mr. Redman, 31, an electrician, says his troubles began in a dispute with neighbors in 1959.

In March 1961 he was convicted of assault after grabbing Richmond Magistrate R. C. Palmer by the collar.

He is disputing an appeal heard by Mr. Justice Sullivan in Supreme Court at which, he says, he was not allowed to conduct his own defence.

An official of the attorney-general's department said the Redmans were assured in an interview Wednesday that the transcript of evidence in the case would be obtained and an inquiry made.

Hotel Rapped In Fire Deaths

A coroner's jury Wednesday accused Willows Hotel management of "deplorable" lack of precaution in the Jan. 19 fire at Campbell River that claimed four lives.

Fire Chief Oscar Thulin said he had always feared a fire disaster in the old building which, he said, was regularly used by volunteer firefighters in their practices.

The jury heard evidence that two of the hotel's wiring circuits were antiquated and not up to provincial standards.

It was told that one fire escape exit had to be made through a linen storage room which was kept locked to avoid theft.

The jury decided: "There was a deplorable failure to make use of what fire prevention and warning facilities were available. No instruction or direction in the use of the facilities was given to those responsible for the welfare of the hotel's patrons."

Killed in the $250,000 fire were loggers Garry Heenan, 35; Charles Knutson, 48; Sven Lindgren, 35, and carpenter Robert Lowe, 42. All were from Campbell River.

DOWNTOWN IMPOST COVERS DEFICITS

Car Park Levy 4.5 Mills

City finance committee today recommended a special levy of 4.5 mills on downtown property owners.

It will be needed to cover an anticipated deficit in the first year's operations of the civic parking garages.

The levy will be added to normal tax notices of about 250 downtown ratepayers who are included in the special area which approved a $1,115,000 money bylaw for the two garages.

City comptroller James Bramley told the committee that the parking commission's budget anticipated a deficit of $39,160 this year.

He said this would need a levy of 3.7 mills but he recommended 4.5 mills to cover contingencies in view of the fact that it will take a year's experience to properly estimate financial requirements.

ESTIMATE LOW

"A parking commission spokesman last week suggested the deficit might need only a two-mill levy."

The parking commission budget estimated 1963 revenue at $75,000 and expenditures at $114,160, including $33,404 for servicing the debenture debt.

Mr. Bramley pointed out that only 138 car parking spaces were available to earn revenues last month and this capacity would build up to 600 car spaces later in the year.

Monthly revenue estimates projected an increase from last month's $2,225 receipts to an expected high of $8,100 in September.

Mr. Bramley said the total assessment in the special area was $10,741,285, requiring a .931 mill levy to cover every $10,000 of loss.

He said the special levy would be added to tax bills and would become payable July 31.

Confused burglar David Frankham, 2981 Borden, testified in Central Saanich police court Wednesday that Larry A. Preston, 33 Regina, was with him when he broke into Butler Bros. Supplies, Keating Cross Road, Jan. 2, stealing dynamite and blasting caps.

He was giving evidence at Preston's preliminary hearing. He already has pleaded guilty to the joint charge.

Frankham said the two youths stole 16 sticks of dynamite "and a couple of boxes" of caps, hiding them in a pump house at Beaver Lake.

Preston asked Magistrate William Oster for a "dismissal," saying nothing had been proved against him.

The magistrate pointed out that he was not trying the case, and was interested only in whether or not there was a case against the accused.

"I am satisfied that there is," he said.

The hearing was adjourned to Feb. 12 for further adjournment to allow Preston time to prepare his defence.

2-Year Sentence For Break-In At Liquor Store

Paul Schultz, 870 Esquimalt, was sentenced in Sidney police court Wednesday to two years in prison for breaking into the government liquor store in Sidney Dec. 29.

The sentence is to run concurrently with a three-year term imposed in city police court Tuesday for a burglary at Spencer's store in Victoria Jan. 3.

Raymond J. Teiford from Vancouver, who was acquitted of the city charge, was remanded in Sidney Court on the liquor store break-in, to Feb. 23 for trial.

Foul Play Hinted In Death

An inquest was ordered to be held late today into the sudden death Sunday of 36-year-old Keith G. Thornber, 961 Darwin, indicating police suspect foul play.

Mr. Thornber was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital at 6 a.m. when he was reported violently ill.

He died 50 minutes later while still in the emergency ward.

It is understood a post mortem was conducted.

The funeral, originally scheduled for today, has been postponed to Friday.

Aldermen Approve Billiard Halls For Women

City finance committee today recommended that women be allowed to enter billiard parlors. It said the present bylaw, restricting players to the male sex 18 years and older, should be broadened to include females.

City solicitor T. P. O'Grady advised the committee that council could not legislate discrimination and on that basis men and women had to be treated equally.

Ask The Times

Q. Can robins fly all the way from the mainland? I always understood they weren't capable of flights that long even though they migrate. R.E.S.

A. Yes; it is possible to see great flocks of American robins flying over the straits to Victoria from the American side. Many of the birds fly from the northern tip of Vancouver Island over the water to the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Instead of going directly over the water to the Queen Charlotte Islands, many robins fly up the coast of B.C. and then land on the Queen Charlottes. The shortest distance between these islands and the coast is 55 miles.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times," Editor, questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old robes, stamps or antiques. Those should be submitted to a dealer.

A Century of Service

On the afternoon of Feb. 9, 1863, a group of nearly 40 leading merchants of the city of Victoria who had expressed themselves as being "favorable to the establishment of a Chamber of Commerce" met in the old Exchange News Building.

According to the leather-bound minutes of that first meeting Robert Burnaby—who gave his name to the municipality bordering Vancouver—was called upon to preside and James Love was asked to act as secretary.

... To the People of Victoria was, upon the motion of Mr. J. G. Shepherd, unanimously elected president. Mr. Alex. Munro then nominated Mr. David to fill the office of vice-president.

"Mr. J. G. Shepherd, manager of the Bank of British North America, was unanimously elected treasurer. Messrs. A. F. Main and W. C. Stiffen were both nominated for the position of secretary. The ballot resulted in the election of the former by a majority. The committee of arbitration is as follows: Messrs. Henry Rhodes, J. A. McCrea, H. D. Munro, E. Grandin, C. W. Wallace and James Love."

Although it is not recorded in the early minutes, it actually had taken the new organization almost 16 months to spring into life.

As the organization grew and filled a need in the city, the quarters in which it met its offices and held its meetings—a suite of rooms rented from R. P. Ribbet for $100 a month—became too cramped and it was decided that the Board needed a home of its own.

The members—many business men and a few tradesmen—were mindful of the fact that prime office space was hard to find in Victoria in those days. A Board of Trade building would not only provide needed office and meeting space, it could also provide the board with rental income. As it turned out, they were right and the building was a money-maker for many years.

By the end of 1865, the proposed building was a newspaper headline, "Towering to the Sky."

By September of 1862 excavation was completed, foundations in and the cornerstone was laid before an audience composed of Board of Trade officials headed by president T. B. Hall, Mr. Flumerfelt, Mr. Ribbet, Mr. Remout and secretary Fred Elworthy.

Official opening of the building was marked the following May when the Board of Trade flag with the words "Board of Trade" in red on a white ground—was raised on its staff atop the structure.

It was at a meeting in October, 1861, that the decision was taken to build the Board of Trade building.

C. E. Renouf explained that the building would be financed by the formation of a joint stock company with 500 shares of $100 each and with the members of the Board taking up the shares which would later be redeemed at par.

In addition to this initial capital, the company was to have the right to issue further shares and other details necessary.

Within a few months there were drawn up and accepted comprehensive and detailed schedules of fees in all areas of trading and commerce—port fees, discounts on drafts and bills of sale, carriage rates and other details necessary.

This view, from across James Bay, shows the HBC paddle steamer "Otter" tied up outside the fort.

The occasion was celebrated that evening with a dinner in the large dining room of the Driard Hotel.

Designed by local architect A. M. Muir, the building was erected on the corner of Parliament Square and a Heintken Alley.

A four-story structure of stone and brick, it had kitchen and pantries, grill room and wine sampling room in the basement and suites of offices in the main and upper floors.

According to newspaper reports, "the general style of treatment is that of the free Italian of the Renaissance period and the beautiful light form of architecture is brought out in all its detail by the graceful front elevation."

Contractors for the building were Dinsdale and Burns.

Victorians of that day were proud of their new Board of Trade building and showed it off to visitors along with such other notable attractions as the Driard Hotel and the Mount Baker Hotel in Oak Bay.

It was about this time that the Board of Trade began to expand its horizons above the purely local mercantile affairs staff atop the structure.

By the end of 1865, the proposed building was a newspaper headline, "Towering to the Sky."

By September of 1862 excavation was completed, foundations in and the cornerstone was laid before an audience composed of Board of Trade officials headed by president T. B. Hall, Mr. Flumerfelt, Mr. Ribbet, Mr. Remout and secretary Fred Elworthy.

Encouragement of local industry—everything from wagon-building to poultry raising—was also a major goal of these early days.

'Revitalization' Project

Erosion and decay of downtown Victoria have been directed to the war effort, and the Chamber was faced, by 1945, with an even greater task.

However, progress has been made with such Chamber-backed projects as underground wiring, the civic parking building, and a downtown tree-planting program among others.

The annual report of 1938 records that the Chamber had initiated a "revitalize downtown Victoria" campaign in that year.

Unfortunately, the war intervened and all the city's Hilarious burlesques of the "Olde English" atmosphere of Victoria staged by the Tourist Industry Group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce have reaped tremendous popularity for the city all up and down the Pacific Coast and throughout the prairie provinces. Shown above is the 1960 Goodwill Tour group as it prepared to set out to visit the U.S. northwestern area. Mayor Scurrah, third from left, was vastly amused at the outfits worn by the Victoria boosters.

Victoria's Fame Spread Far

Spreading the fame of Victoria far and wide, with resulting benefits of many millions of tourist dollars for Victoria and Vancouver Island, has for many years been a special concern of the Chamber of Commerce.

While all Chamber members enthusiastically back the campaigns which have seen tourist traffic increase substantially year by year, a subcommittee, the Tourist Trade Group, is the spearhead of the movement.

The group's Goodwill Tours for a number of years have helped promote Victoria as a tourist and convention centre throughout Western Canada and all of the U.S. Pacific coast area. It's sponsorship of Tourist Appreciation Week has helped Victorians realize the benefits of the tourist industry.

EARLY BROCHURE

One of the Chamber's first tourist promotion ventures was a brochure published in 1902 describing the attractions of "Picturesque Victoria—the tourist and commercial city of the Canadian Far West."

"The beautiful city of Victoria, the most western city on the continent of America, the Pacific Gateway to the great Dominion of Canada, and the capital of British Columbia, is "On the south and west are the Straits of Juan de Fuca, and the Pacific Ocean, and on the east lies that magnificent inland sea, the Gulf of Georgia, which, with its wealth of picturesque islands, out-rials the more widely known Thousand Isles.

"The combination of hold and picturesque country with old-fashioned English homes, their beautiful gardens and air of comfort and contentment, makes Victoria a delightful residential city. There is an admirable free school system, and the cost of living is lower than in any other city on the coast."

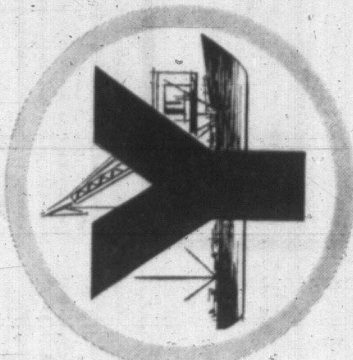

"Victoria has a climate devoid of extremes of heat or cold, and much similar to that of the south of England. There are practically but two seasons, spring and fall; zero weather, sunstrokes and prostrations from the heat are afflictions only known to Victorians through newspaper reports from other parts of the world."

It wasn't enough that visitors should be attracted to Victoria, they needed accommodation here as well.

"For that reason the Chamber started a campaign to persuade the Canadian Pacific Railway to build a large tourist hotel in the city and appointed a special committee under J. A. Mara to sell the idea to them. CPR president Sir Thomas Shaughnessy.

Sir Thomas was not impressed with the idea initially but when he visited Victoria in 1902, and the committee had a chance to use personal persuasion, he admitted that he was impressed with the arguments advanced.

The matter was put before the board of the CPR, finally approved and six years later the first wing of the Empress Hotel was opened.

BUILT INTO THE FABRIC OF OUR CITY'S LIFE

We salute those pioneer business men, from whose civic pride sprang the formation of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce. Throughout the years we, here at Yarrow's, have realized the vital necessity of community effort, of planning and working for the city and district where our roots are set. Since 1894 these shipyards have grown with Victoria, an integral part of the industrial life of the area.

Chamber Manager Leads a Busy Life

Smooth functioning of a Chamber of Commerce as a business organization rests largely on the executive ability of its permanent manager.

Mr. Coppinger is a graduate of the University of Manitoba and holds a master's degree in business administration from Northwestern University at Chicago.

During the Second World War he served with the RCAF and the Army Signals Corps in Britain and the Northwest Europe theatre.

A BUSY ROLE

Mr. Coppinger's role in Chamber activities is a busy one. In addition to overseeing the day-to-day functions of the office, which includes providing an immense amount of information on every facet of Victoria activities from industry to tourism to everyone who asks for it, he also is secretary of the Chamber, keeping the minutes of its activities, arranging the agenda for meetings, planning many of its functions and translating its plans into action.

The manager is also responsible for the voluminous research which must be obtained to buttress Chamber brochures on a wide variety of subjects.

Busy as he is with his heavy responsibilities with the Victoria Chamber, Mr. Coppinger also finds time to act as secretary of the Associated Chambers of Vancouver Island, acting as liaison man between the 25 Chambers and Boards spread out between the southern and northern tips of the Island.

National President To Speak

There is a happy coincidence in the selection of Victor Oland, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, as guest speaker at Friday night's Victoria Chamber of Commerce Centennial banquet in the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Oland is a native of Halifax whose seaport and military and naval installations were Britain's first fortress on the Atlantic just as Victoria's port and installations

Furthermore, Mr. Oland is a past president of the Halifax Board of Trade which is the oldest Board in Canada while the Victoria Chamber was the first established west of the Great Lakes.

Mr. Oland was elected president of the Canadian Chamber at the 33rd annual meeting in Vancouver last year. He was formerly first national vice president of the organization.

Wide Selection Of Directories

For the service of members and the general public, Victoria Chamber of Commerce maintains a reference library in its offices at 1217 Douglas Street containing a wide selection of telephone directories and city directories.

Telephone and city directories of almost every sizeable city in the province: City directories of: Olympia, Bellingham, Port Angeles, Seattle, Spokane, Portland, Eugene, Astoria, Vancouver (Wash.), Long Beach, Sacramento, Pasadena, San Diego, San Francisco, Santa Barbara, Fairbanks, Anchorage, Edmonton, Canada: Winnipeg, Edmonton, Lethbridge, Calgary, Moose Jaw; Trade directories of: Austria, Great Britain, Denmark, Japan, Germany, China, Korea and Spain.

Good Old Days

One of the benefits of modern life missing from this Victoria street scene of around 1880 is paved streets. Paving of any kind was unknown in the city then and did not become general until after the turn of the century. This view is of Douglas Street between Yates and Pandora, but it resembles a bog more than a roadway. The wooden sidewalks were no bargain, either, since they became slick and treacherous with the rain and mud from the road.

Wages Were Low In 'Good Old Days'

Annual reports and minutes of meetings of the Chamber of Commerce throw an interesting light on what are known as "the good old days."

For instance, in the annual report for 1893, there is included a survey of rates of wages paid in the various trades in British Columbia, believed to be one of the earliest wage reports made.

It shows that the working bricklayers, stone-masons and ship carpenters and caulkers on old work were paid a flat rate of $5 a day. Ship carpenters and caulkers on new work, along with stone cutters, made $4.50 a day.

Wages paid in other trades were: Plasterers, $4.50 to $5; hod carriers, $2.25 to $3; carpenters and joiners, $3 to $4; tinsmiths and cornice workers, $3; plumbers, $3 to $4; and painters, $3 to $3.25.

The survey also records that bakers were paid $65 to $75 a month, with a board, while butchers received $75 to $100 a month without board.

The Yates Street of 1863, year the Victoria Chamber of Commerce was founded, shown in the top photo, bears little resemblance to the Yates Street of 1963. How will it look in 2063 when the Chamber marks its 200th Anniversary?

Chamber Tried to Buy Farm for Prince George

The late King George VI and was backed by the Associated Banks of Vancouver Island landowner back in 1927 when, as Prince George, he made a tour of Canada.

The idea originated with A.M. Woodhead of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, then being offered for sale by Grif.

Mr. Woodhead pointed out that the asking price for Frond was only $85,000 while Mr. Hughes had spent more than $265,000 on the property.

The purchase price included land, buildings, machinery and a rarity for those days—its own electric lighting plant.

The Board of Trade was told that the provincial government would contribute $25,000 of the $85,000, the City of Victoria was expected to give $10,000 and other Island municipalities $10,000. The balance of $40,000 was to be raised by public subscription.

However, even though 1927 was a relatively prosperous year the Board found it impossible to raise the funds and Prince George visited and left Vancouver Island that summer without becoming a landowner.

Communication Links Fought for by Chamber

The struggle first to obtain, and then to expand and maintain firm, convenient and inexpensive communication and transportation links between Vancouver Island and the mainland has from the first been a priority project of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

And there has hardly been a year in which transportation has not figured largely in Chamber business as technological changes have outmoded or altered first one method of travel and then another, or as the Chamber has tried to anticipate the growing needs of an expanding population.

Back in the 1860s, economic and cultural links between Victoria and Pacific Coast points in the U.S. were stronger than they are today. Some of the Chamber's first efforts to strengthen communications involved these areas.

In 1881 the Chamber opened a campaign for daily mail service between Victoria and the Puget Sound area and after several years of vigorous representation the Post Office department at Ottawa initiated the service.

At the same time the group started a plan for a submarine telegraph cable between Vancouver Island and what was then Washington Territory via Victoria and Port Angeles.

First Auto Ferry

The first Anacortes-Vancouver Island ferry service was started in 1882 as a result of Chamber efforts. Many years later, in 1922, the organization succeeded in having run—the first auto ferry between the Island and the mainland.

The year 1887 saw the Chamber pressing for more frequent steamer sailings between Victoria and California ports.

An echo of this is heard in the business.

In addition to the CPR boats, the Northern Pacific Steamship Company had four ships on the run to the Orient, and the Japan Mail Steamship Company in conjunction with the Great Northern Railway, had three vessels on the same run.

All these great ocean-going steamers called at Victoria on both inward and outward voyages so that scarcely a day went by without at least one of them berthed in the harbor.

Intra-Island transportation was not neglected in the Chamber's earlier days.

The Victoria group kept up a continued campaign, one which is still going on today, in fact, for construction and improvement of roads to connect every Island community.

Main concern in recent years has been to press for northern extension to the Island highway and every effort of isolation for construction and improvement of roads to connect communities on the northern end of Vancouver Island.

Business Brisk

These ships, engaged in the China-Japan trade called every three weeks in the summer and monthly in the winter. Occasionally extra ships had to be put on the run, so brisk was the business.

Armed Escort for Gold Trains Was First Project for C of C

Organization of Victoria's Chamber of Commerce 100 years ago coincided with one of the most exciting periods in British Columbia's history—the rip-roaring days of the Gold Rush at Barkerville and other gold camps on the Fraser River.

The forces of law and order were scattered, but thinly through the gold-mining country so it is not surprising that there were frequent robberies of the gold trains as they made their difficult way to the coast.

For the merchants of Victoria, jumping-off place for miners and their supplies and repository of the gold until it could be shipped by steamer to San Francisco, the robberies were a matter of great concern.

ESCORT CONSIDERED
A few weeks after the initial organization of the Chamber a meeting was called to hear a report from a special committee which had been charged with investigating the possibility of providing an armed escort to bring the gold safely out from Barkerville.

The proceedings of this meeting, carefully recorded in the minutes book, show that the plan had a fair amount of historical interest.

Hard Fight To Become A Canadian

Assistant secretary of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, September, 1957, is L. J. Worrell, who came to Canada in 1938 with a three-month visitor's visa and a determination not to return to Hitler's Germany.

It took a brisk legal battle with immigration officials and finally the personal intervention of the late prime minister Mackenzie King to keep Mr. Worrell in Canada until, on the outbreak of war, return was impossible.

After the war immigration officials renewed their bid to return Mr. Worrell to Germany, but he was determined on becoming a Canadian and finally in 1947 was granted citizenship by order-in-council.

Since coming to Canada, he has worked on a farm, was foreman in a Winnipeg glass factory, operated a souvenir manufacturing business in that city, owned a tourist resort on Kootenay Lake and worked on newspapers in the Interior.

He came to Victoria in 1952 as agent for a Vancouver news paper until joining the Chamber in 1957.

port of Premier Bennett and the government went ahead rapidly to implement it. In June of 1960 the service between Swartz Bay and the mainland was started with two specially-built auto ferries. Mr. Sidney and the Mr. Tsay, the nucleus of what has grown to be a large fleet of "Queens" linking many parts of the province's sea-coast.

For from being the failure predicted by Mr. Crump, the new ferry service was extremely successful from the start. The rising tide of tourism, along with the fact that it maintained residents and the two-hour trip through the Gulf Islands and the Strait of Juan de Fuca, has now a high priority in any visit to British Columbia.

Provided Spark
But it should not be forgotten that the spark for the whole project and the enthusiasm and energy which carried it through to a safe Victoria's Chamber originated in Crump's vision.

As always, Crump was determined that Victoria, the capital city of British Columbia, must never be allowed to languish in isolation, which would lead to decay.

When it became evident to the group that no other interest could take on a ferry project, competition with the CPR, particularly in view of Mr. Crump's warning, it was decided that only one agency, the provincial government, could successfully undertake the job.

The carefully prepared experience and detailed research, was taken, to Highways Minister Gagliardi who was, it turned out, the one man with the vision and enthusiasm to put the plan into effect.

The brief went before the B.C. Cabinet, gained the support of the government and the plan was implemented.

Even worse for the group's hopes to interest some other firm in taking on the service, Mr. Crump warned that the mighty CPR would fight any attempt to displace the slow CPR boats on the Vancouver-Victoria run.

The brief went before the B.C. Cabinet, gained the support of the government and the plan was implemented.

Even worse for the group's hopes to interest some other firm in taking on the service, Mr. Crump warned that the mighty CPR would fight any attempt to displace the slow CPR boats on the Vancouver-Victoria run.

When it became evident to the group that no other interest could take on a ferry project, competition with the CPR, particularly in view of Mr. Crump's warning, it was decided that only one agency, the provincial government, could successfully undertake the job.

The carefully prepared experience and detailed research, was taken, to Highways Minister Gagliardi who was, it turned out, the one man with the vision and enthusiasm to put the plan into effect.

port of Premier Bennett and the government went ahead rapidly to implement it. In June of 1960 the service between Swartz Bay and the mainland was started with two specially-built auto ferries. Mr. Sidney and the Mr. Tsay, the nucleus of what has grown to be a large fleet of "Queens" linking many parts of the province's sea-coast.

For from being the failure predicted by Mr. Crump, the new ferry service was extremely successful from the start. The rising tide of tourism, along with the fact that it maintained residents and the two-hour trip through the Gulf Islands and the Strait of Juan de Fuca, has now a high priority in any visit to British Columbia.

Provided Spark
But it should not be forgotten that the spark for the whole project and the enthusiasm and energy which carried it through to a safe Victoria's Chamber originated in Crump's vision.

As always, Crump was determined that Victoria, the capital city of British Columbia, must never be allowed to languish in isolation, which would lead to decay.

ing were read and confirmed. The committee appointed to wait on His Excellency the Governor General, the Hon. J. G. (Sir James Douglas) Rolph, to the establishment of a Gold Escort Fund in the following report which was read:

"To the President and members of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce: The Committee on the Gold Escort Fund to make the following report:

"1. That according to instructions contained in the resolution adopted by the Chamber at the last meeting they waited upon Governor Douglas, who, after some conversation upon the subject agreed to furnish the Committee with an approximate estimate of the income and expenditure of an efficient escort for the ensuing season, stating that he would be glad to receive any suggestions from the Chamber as to the details of its management, that he thought it could be organized and ready to start by the first of May or sooner if required and that the change would be 2 per cent."

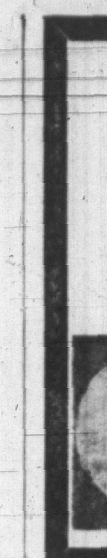

"2. The committee held another meeting whereat Mr. Ker, auditor-general, attended and gave in the following estimate as promised by the Governor: (Memorandum of Estimate, etc.)

GOLD ESCORT
Probable expense of an escort of 20 men, Horses, carts, saddles, etc. $14,000.00
Current expenses for the season, $29,100.00
Probable revenue, $43,900.00
Say 10 claims averaging 200 ozs. per day, equal to 12,000 ozs. per week of 4,000 lbs. per month. Suppose one half of this to be brought down by the Escort, viz.,

2,000 lbs. at 60c per oz. equals $12,000.00
Say four trips at $48,000.00
Value of plant say 7,000.00
Surplus $31,100.00
It is suggested that the Chamber of Commerce or the bank or banks, appointed there-by, should honor the drafts of the government for the sum of $31,900 as hereinafter set out for such period as the gold may be required during the season. The gold of the Escort Fund shall be paid into that bank from time to time and placed to the credit of the current account. If at the close of the season a debit balance shall be exhibited, the Government to indemnify the Chamber in respect of such debit balance. If, on the other hand, a creditor balance shall appear, such credit balance to be at the disposition of the Government as part of the Public Revenue of the Colony."

Establishment of the Gold Escort was the new Chamber's first successful enterprise and it was undertaken only because Governor James Douglas and the Colonial Legislature were unwilling to take the risk of underwriting the venture.

The government, however, was not unwilling to take any reward as the final paragraph of the minutes showed.

First Eastern Oyster Transplant Tried Out at Victoria in 1884

Earliest experiments in transplanting Atlantic oysters to the Pacific Coast were carried out near Victoria in 1884, with the encouragement of the Chamber of Commerce.

In the annual report for that year, President R. P. Ribbet noted: "The business of oyster culture, still in embryo, promises favorably. Mr. A. J. McLellan, formerly of Prince Edward Island, to whom a lease of certain tidal waters in the neighborhood of Victoria, was last year granted, has gone on with the business. He has imported and planted out several carloads of oysters from Boston and there is every ground to hope that his enterprise, so far successful, will be permanently profitable. The Mud Bay Oyster Company, which had previously obtained a lease, has also taken measures for planting their tract with imported stock; and I anticipate that, with the success of these operations, a lively impetus will be given to the prosecution of the oyster industry in divers favorable positions around."

Year-End Statistical Report Area Business Barometer

Record Construction, Boom in Tourists Highlights of 1962

At the end of each year Victoria Chamber of Commerce publishes a statistical bulletin of considerable interest both to the local businessmen and to potential investors outside the area.

Almost every facet of the economic life of Victoria and area is covered in the bulletin from general information about the city—its area, population—to retail trade figures, ship loadings, construction totals and payrolls.

Here is the forward to the recently published summary for 1962:

"By almost any measure, 1962 has to rate as an outstanding year in the economic history of Victoria and there is every indication that many of the most important factors will continue to exert a strong influence well into 1963.

CONSTRUCTION RECORD

"The construction industry has enjoyed a new record year. Permits for 11 months at $27.8 million far outstripped 1958's total of $24.4 million. The year saw a further drop in new home building, and another increase in apartment construction. This in itself clearly indicates a continuation of the trend away from home ownership with its repair and maintenance problems, into an apartment rental preference.

"Prospects for 1963 are excellent with several large projects in progress now, and the acceptance by city voters of the Centennial Square plan.

"Employment has, in general, been at a high level throughout the year, with several industries showing well in comparison to recent years. The shipyards have had a good year, and while prospects for 1963 do not indicate a record year, there is every reason to look for a reasonably good flow of new contracts to our local yards, with a correspondingly good effect on their employment levels. The lumber and plywood mills have been able to maintain a steady production flow, though this has required constant effort and attention on the sales front!

FLOOD OF TOURISTS

"The success of the 1962 tourist season requires little comment—it was there for all to see. But therein lies the key to further success in the years to come. Many of our visitors saw the Pacific Northwest for the first time, and from comments noted from time to time, Victoria came in for its full share of the compliments. The accommodation centre did a good job, merchants for the greater part were scrupulously careful to give the full premium on the U.S. dollar, and residents frequently went out of their way to be helpful. These are the things, little and big, which make the difference between success and failure. Look for a big increase over 1961's volume in 1963, but not only comes once per year, and then only to those who deserve it.

"For 1963—plenty of problems as usual, but generally a good year, and who knows, it might even be climaxed by amalgamation of two or more of our four little puddles."

Nine Million Carry Health Insurance

In the field of medical care, at the beginning of 1961 some 9,326,000 Canadians had voluntarily insured themselves against surgical costs, about 8,648,000 against medical costs and 6,824,000 persons had hospital coverage through voluntary insurance plans.

JAMES BEATTY
... Dean of Chamber

There have been 56 presidents in the 100 years since the Victoria Chamber of Commerce was established and, of these, 17 are still active in Chamber affairs.

Dean of the past presidents and Chamber member with the longest record of service is James H. Beatty who joined the organization in 1917 and became president for the 1920-21 term.

Mr. Beatty, who came to Victoria in 1913 from Toronto to establish the Sproull-Shaw business school in which he is still active as managing director, recently recalled his term of office as a busy era in the Chamber's history.

The postwar recovery was getting into full swing and the Chamber was determined to keep Victoria moving ahead.

A thorough reorganization was undertaken, the name was changed from Board of Trade back to the original Chamber of Commerce and a membership drive produced a total of 700 members.

It was the year in which the beloved George I. Warren became permanent secretary-manager—a post he was to fill for 34 years—and Mr. Beatty had on his executive men such as Victoria Times editor Benny Nicholas, former mayor Percy Scourah, Robert Mayhew, Herbert Stevens and Gerald Beckwith.

This group sparked and pushed through a project which has proved of immense benefit to the Victoria over the years—the government graving dock at Esquimalt which was only obtained after a stiff fight with Vancouver and, as Mr. Beatty recalls with a twinkle, considerable "undercover" work.

CRYSTAL GARDEN

The Chamber that year also pushed the CPR into agreeing to build the Crystal Garden, which was completed five years later.

Memorial Avenue was another project of the Chamber during Mr. Beatty's presidency—envisioned as a broad tree-lined avenue leading up to the top of Mount Douglas where it would terminate in a huge white cross.

Every British Columbian killed in the First World War was to be honored with a tree.

LONGEST TERM as president of Victoria Chamber of Commerce was served by Henry Rhodes, who held the office from 1857 to 1972.

The estimated cost of interest charges on Canada's national public debt is $788,181,000 for the current fiscal year.

Loganberries Promoted

Few people recall it today, but the big loganberry-growing industry of the Saanich Peninsula was an innovation sparked by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Loganberry culture spread rapidly and in turn sparked a sideline, the making of loganberry wine for which B.C. is famous around the world.

Victorians Helped

The Chamber of Commerce movement in British Columbia grew rapidly following organization of the Victoria Chamber and businessmen from this city were called upon often to lend their experience to the movement.

In the mid-1880s, the Victoria group helped organize the New Westminster Board of Trade and in 1889 assisted at the birth of the Vancouver Board.

Later the Victoria members were influential in the organization of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island, the B.C. Chamber of Commerce and the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Remember the Bobbies?

The crowding touch in creating the "little bit of Old England" atmosphere in Victoria was the police uniform styled after that of the London Metropolitan force. Tourist-minded Chamber of Commerce members almost wept when it was replaced with modern dress. Every year as the tourist season is about to open up the Chamber's Tourist Industry Group makes a pitch to have the uniform revived but Victoria's policemen are unmoved. The uniform was uncomfortable, they say, and they'd feel foolish in it now.

Extensive Coverage Given Early Meetings

Victoria's newspapers of 60 and 70 years ago were remarkably outspoken in their news columns when it came to estimating the worth of a meeting. Frequent references to early Chamber of Commerce meetings are prefaced with such phrases as: "Little business of importance was transacted at yesterday morning's meeting of the council of the board of trade."

On the other hand, when the Chamber of Commerce met, the newspapers devoted columns of space to covering it. Some reports of regular meetings took up two or three columns of fine print and went into minute details which '46-day's busy readers would not tolerate.

Of course in those days there were few distractions such as TV, radio or movies, and newspaper reading was a ritual to which serious-minded persons were prepared to give much time.

We Congratulate the

Women in Chamber? Yes, an Even Dozen

Several years ago Victoria newspapers carried a story from Montreal relating the pride of that city's Chamber of Commerce in the fact that they had recently admitted women members to their ranks.

The story was greeted with a hearty horse-laugh in Victoria's Chamber of Commerce where a substantial number of women had been members for more than a dozen years.

It was, in fact, 17 years ago when the first Victoria business woman applied for and received membership in the organization.

She was Mrs. H. I. Mallek who asked to take up the membership held by her late husband, founder of the Mallek Ltd. women's wear shop.

PERSUADED OTHERS
Still an active member of the Chamber, Mrs. Mallek recalls trying to persuade other women to join what had until then been an all-male organization.

"One or two of them looked at me as though I wasn't being quite reasonable," she said. "Why, there's nothing but men in the Chamber of Commerce," they declared.

"Well, doesn't that make it all the more attractive," Mrs. Mallek replied.

Another 17-year woman member of the Chamber is Mrs. H. C. Macdonald, of the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, who joined shortly after Mrs. Mallek. Mrs. Macdonald had previously been a member of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce before coming to Victoria.

Mrs. Mallek and Mrs. Macdonald there are:

Mrs. Catherine Ayton of Rogers Chocolates;

Mrs. E. Brand of Brand's Restaurant;

Mrs. B. W. Burnell of Wiloughby Guest Home;

Mrs. E. Carr of Piccadilly Shoppe Ltd.;

Mrs. L. L. Chambers of New North;

Mrs. E. Z. Fitzgerald of the Quest;

Mrs. E. L. Fitzhugh of Victoria Pike Dyeing Co.;

Mrs. Ursula Redwood dress-maker at 1006 Government;

Mrs. F. M. B. Thompson of the Board of School Trustees;

Mrs. Avis Walton of New Neighbor Service.

Wharf Street Goes Modern

Victoria's Wharf Street took on a shiny "modern" look around the beginning of the century when a number of new buildings were erected. The contrast is shown in the above photos showing (top) the street, circa 1860, and (lower) the same area about 40 years later.

Lord Minto's Visit Caused Stir

So grand an occasion as the visit of His Excellency the Governor General, Lord Minto to Victoria had the Victoria Chamber of Commerce in a tizzy in 1900.

Here is an amusing account of the affair from the Times of July 26:

"The council of the chamber had a lesson in language and construction of English sentences this morning which would have done credit to an academy.

"The critical and analytical skill the hard-headed business-men displayed, and the zest with which they went into the turning of phrases showed that by no means driven out of the taste and knowledge of letters.

"The council met in the board room at 11 o'clock this morning, the principal business being the discussion of a draft of the address of welcome which the Board of Trade will present to His Excellency the Governor General on the arrival of Lord Minto.

"The address will be one of three, the three members of the committee being Mr. J. A. MacIsaac, Mr. G. W. G. and Mr. C. H. Laing.

"Mr. G. W. G. read the address and then President Ward, who was in the chair, read it clause by clause, the members offering suggestions as to the phrasing and the appropriate sense of the sentiments expressed.

"Three gentlemen were on two or three occasions verging on a political discussion, in considering a clause urging immediate construction of an all-British route to the Atlin and Yukon country, pending the settlement of the boundary dispute.

"Mr. McCandless asked what the effect would be of inserting such a clause, in view of the fact that a senator from British Columbia had moved the six months' host to the bill for construction of such a road, and the members from British Columbia had also opposed the bill.

"The address will be one of three, the three members of the committee being Mr. J. A. MacIsaac, Mr. G. W. G. and Mr. C. H. Laing.

"Mr. G. W. G. read the address and then President Ward, who was in the chair, read it clause by clause, the members offering suggestions as to the ing may be very extensively prosecuted.

"The province does not possess except in its north-eastern portion any large areas of prairie land, fitted by nature for the growth of grain. There are within its borders hundreds of fertile valleys capable of yielding in perfection all the crops grown in Canada, and in some instances those for which we are accustomed to look to a more southerly latitude. The pastoral areas, which are very large, lie as a rule at an altitude above the line where agriculture can be successfully prosecuted.

"Topographical conditions, however, make it practically useless to expect the immigration into British Columbia of any considerable number of farmers, until modern means of transportation have been provided. Given these, and mining, lumbering and agriculture will progress simultaneously, whereby a substantial foundation will be laid for permanent prosperity.

"The Board also desires to point out that a period of great and rapid expansion in the commerce of the Pacific Ocean has begun. The volume of trade flowing across that ocean (Continued on Page 24)

Other Affiliations

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce is affiliated with three other Chamber organizations—in an area group, a provincial group and the national body.

Oldest of these organizations is the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island which was founded 45 years ago and is composed of the 25-member chambers and business on the Island.

The British Columbia Chamber of Commerce is only 12 years old. Its first president was a past president of the Victoria Chamber, E. W. Atkinson.

President of the British Columbia Chamber is Ralph D. Baker of Vancouver. The national organization, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, was founded in 1926 at Winnipeg. It has about 100,000 members.

the effect of this in a marked degree. The progress is phenomenal, even in a country where instances of exceptional development are far from common. We appreciate the fact that in the United States are eighty millions of people and a vast accumulation of wealth, compared with which the population and financial resources of Canada are relatively small, but the Board feels that this only increases the responsibility resting upon the government and peoples of Canada.

Cowichan River, Alberni Canal and Comox Lake.

This line was seen as the means—a dream still unrealized but recently revived—of rapid communication with the western frontier of the Empire on an equal footing with all rivals.

"The Board desires to impress upon you, and through you upon the government of Canada, that the six degrees of British Columbia's coastline are the only part of the one hundred and twenty-five degrees of the American coast between Point Barrow on the north and Cape Horn on the south, over which the British flag flies.

"The ports of British Columbia are nearer the Orient than any others in America, except those of Alaska, which may be out of consideration in this connection, and the trans-continental routes across Canada are shorter and more favorable for transportation purposes than any others.

"The position of British Columbia as an integral part of the Dominion of Canada in respect to the commerce of the Pacific is a commanding one, and we respectfully suggest that this fact, taken in connection with the rapid march of events in the countries around the coast of the greatest of the oceans, imposes a duty upon the government, the parliament and the people of Canada, which ought not to be lightly laid aside, and the discharge of which cannot be postponed without serious consequences."

Group Seeks Active Role in Community

What is the Chamber of Commerce and what are its functions in the community? To some people it is primarily an organization of business men involved in the furtherance of business and commercial aims.

But, in fact, while the Victoria Chamber of Commerce in its initial years was mostly concerned with commerce in the community has steadily expanded and can be best described now by its official statement of objectives and aims.

"The Victoria Chamber of Commerce is a voluntary association of citizens to promote commercial, industrial, agricultural and civic welfare in the community by: Protecting and advancing the

U.S. Cannery Competition Led to Fish Trap Demand

Chamber of Commerce members of today would look with horror on a resolution passed by their predecessors 60 years ago.

On February 4, 1902, a special meeting of the board was called to consider a memorandum prepared for the Dominion Fisheries Commission, then holding hearings in Victoria, which recommended that the commission grant permission to British subjects to operate fish traps in adjacent waters.

It must be remembered of course, that in those days the general opinion was that there was an unlimited number of salmon in the ocean. Conservation practices were almost unknown.

What had provoked the Victoria Board of Commerce to consider this resolution as part of the Alaska boundary dispute.

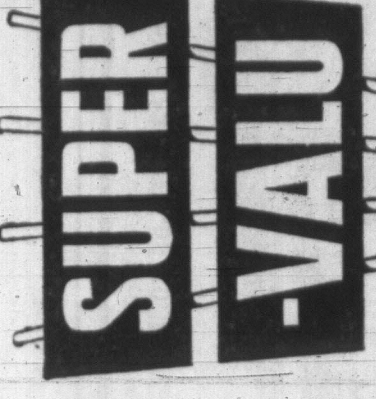

man of the fisheries committee, and he called attention to the great advantages possessed by canners on the Washington coast due to the free use of traps. In one instance, he said, one of the large Washington canneries obtained their fish at three cents per case while the B.C. canners had to pay as high as $1.47 for the fish necessary to fill a case.

C. H. Lugin charged that U.S. fishermen were poaching inside Canada's three-mile limit—even going so far as to frighten off the halibut by throwing the oil into the water.

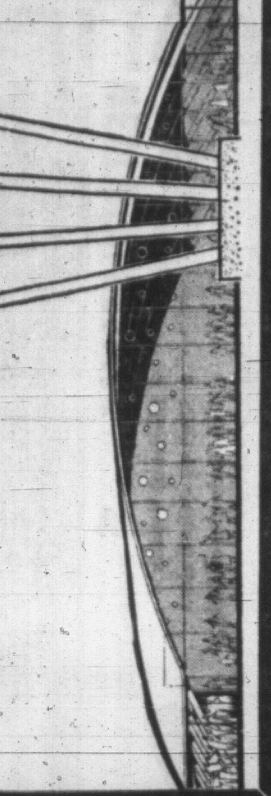

The meeting decided to ask federal officials to consider this matter as part of the Alaska boundary dispute.

Chamber Men of 'Nineties' Great Trenchermen, Orators

Back in the 'Nineties the men of the Chamber of Commerce were obviously hearty trenchermen, wonderful orators and patient listeners.

Indisputable proof of this comes from the menu on the occasion of the Chamber's annual banquet, Thursday, May 4, 1893, in the Driand Hotel.

The festive occasion got under way at 8 p.m. and the speech-making didn't end until 4 a.m. the following morning.

When the members sat down at the glistening board in the plush splendor of the Driand banquet room they started with eastern oysters on the half shell and hors d'oeuvres of radishes, celery, anchovies and olives.

Then came a choice of soups—served with a sherry—consomme, grand duc; cream of cauliflower, a la Conde, or terrapin soupe, a l'Anglaise. The fish course, with sauternes, offered broiled trout, maitre d'hotel or filet of halibut, Normandle with potato Parisienne.

The salads were chicken mayonnaise, a la Cardinal and shrimp, a la Florentine.

Then came the entrees, with a Chateau La rose—spring chicken, saute aux champignons and pommes Duchesse; filet of beef a la Godard, or soufflé de Volaille, a la reine d'Hortense.

The cold entrees offered were boneless turkey, celle vue; Westphalian ham, sauce Ravigote; boiled tongue, en coque, and Roman punch, a la Vendome.

Of course there were also roasts; roast turkey, stuffed with truffles; prime roast beef, English style; and lamb with mint sauce.

For vegetables there were asparagus, en branches, sauce Hollandaise; and French green peas.

Wines offered next were Pommery, Mumm and Gold Lac.

Dessert time, for those who could still eat, brought plum pudding with cognac hard sauce, sabayon a l'Italienne, trifles, charlotte russe, mara-cheno jelly, vanilla ice cream, assorted cakes, lemon pie, apple pie, fruit, cheese and cake noir.

Then the cigars and cognac were passed and the toasts got under way.

There were no less than 13 toasts on the list and, since convention demanded that each should receive at least 15 minutes of the best eloquence of the one proposing it, and another 15 minutes of eloquence from the one chosen to reply, it's no wonder the gentlemen didn't leave the banquet until 4 a.m.

President T. B. Hall proposed the toast to the Queen, to which there was the conventional response, and the toast to the President of the United States replied to by Levi W. Myers, U.S. consul at Victoria.

Vice-president E. Crow Baker toasted His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and that gentleman, Hon. Edgar Dewdney, replied.

"The Army, Navy and Volunteers" was proposed by vice-president A. C. Flumerfelt and Capt. Hughes-Hallett of HMS Amethyst, Lt.-Col. Holmes and Lt.-Col. Prior, respectively, replied.

R. P. Rithet proposed the health of the Senate and the House of Commons and local member of Parliament Thomas Earle responded.

The provincial government and legislature came next with J. H. Todd giving the toast and Hon. Theo. Davie replying.

"The Bench and Bar" by A. B. Gray brought replies from the famous jurist Sir Matthew Baillie Begbie and E. V. Bodwell.

Robert Ward proposed the toast to "Our Sister Boards of Trade" (odd use of the feminine for entirely masculine organizations), while C. E. Renout toasted "Our Guests" and Hon. J. S. Helmcken "The Press."

The toasting carried on as the members drank to "Transportation Facilities of the Future," proposed by H. E. Con-ture, then replied to by Gen. J. B. Metcalfe and F. Bakeman; then on to "Our Commercial Interests and the Event We Celebrate" from Fred H. Worlock and replied to by W. C. Ward, R. P. Rithet and Gus Leiser. Finally the speechifying and vice-president E. Crow Baker and responded to on behalf of the ladies—there being none of them present unfortunately, by Ald. H. A. Munn.
